You're all Irish today

It was a long time ago. Before you were born. Before your parents were born.

In fact, there were no people. There was only God and the angels, up there in heaven.

Now there were three angels of note in heaven. Each had a large following.

The first angel's name was Michael. Ah, he was a magnificent lad, too. Strong and trustworthy, everywhere he went people would say, "Sure and there goes Michael."

The second angel's name was Lucifer. Now he was a fine strapping lad, too, to be sure. Lucifer was a proud one, he was, and he had a lot of followers.

He's Got Gab

Now the third angel's name was Darby O'Gill. While Darby wasn't as strong or as eye-catching as Michael and Lucifer, he had a terrific gift of the gab, you see.

Darby would stand around in the derby he always wore and talk to his lads. Darby's followers were the type who enjoyed that sort of thing.

The only problem was that Darby never was real sure what he wanted to do. For example, now, one of his lads would say, "Hey, Darby, let's go over by the moon and play catch."

"Oh, maybe yes, now and maybe no. I can't make up my mind."

Well, one day Almighty God called all the angels together and told them he was going to create man. Then He told them He'd give man a lot of advantages, but that if man fouled things up, then God would send His Son to save man.

Angels Disagree

If He did that, God said, His Son would become a man, and all the angels would have to obey the God-man.

The angels left and talked it over. "I won't do it," Lucifer said. "I'm an angel. I won't obey some man."

Almighty God said we should," Michael said. "That's good enough for me."

"I won't serve," Lucifer said, and all his followers hooted and said they wouldn't either.

So a great war started to brew in heaven. Over on one side of the everlasting hills, Michael's army trained for the big battle.

And on the other side of heaven, Lucifer's troops got ready.

One day Michael came to Darby and said, "Darby, are ya with me?"

And Darby said, "Sure, Michael, you're a fine lad. But so's Lucifer, And you've got a strong army. But so does Lucifer. I can't make up my mind."

Then Lucifer came and said, "Darby, tell me right now. Whose side are ya on?"

He Can Decide Not

"Ah, you're both fine lads," Darby said. "I can't make up my mind."

After Lucifer left, Darby's followers added, "And sure, chief, what'er we gonna do?"

Darby thought and thought.

"Tell ya what," he said, "We'll build a big tower, and watch the fight. Why we'll have a magnificent view. Then, when the fight's over, we'll go down and congratulate the winner."

Now Darby's followers being just like him, they thought the idea was a bonny one. So while the armies trained, Darby and his angels built their tower.

The big day came and Darby and his boys climbed up into their tower and looked out over the battlefield.

First thing ya know, the two armies came rushing at each other and met with the mightiest crash the universe had ever heard.

Lucifer Winning

Darby watched closely, and the first thing ya know, it looked like Lucifer's army was by far getting the best of it.

"Atta boy, Lucifer," Darby shouted. He nudged the angel next to him. "Sure, he's a fine lad," Darby said. "Fine, indeed," the other angel said, and they both nodded.

But then Michael rallied his forces, and started to win.

"That a way, Michael lad," Darby shouted, and all in the tower cheered.

Well, the battle went back and forth. It was the biggest donnybrook ever known before or since.

But Michael won. He pushed Lucifer and his crew to the edge of heaven, and then knocked them over and way down to the new place Almighty God had created just for the occasion.

Darby and his boys looked over at the new place, and then hurried down to meet Michael. "Glory be to God," Darby said, as he hurried down the stairs, "I certainly wouldn't want to go there."

Michael Congratulated

Darby's boys ran out to meet Michael. "Well well, well," Darby said to Michael. "I never doubted ya for a wee bit of a minute. A fine fight, First Rate."

But Michael, tired from the fight, just smiled a little half smile at Darby.

A little while later, say, when Darby and his boys were talking over the fight and sipping a little moon water, one of Michael's angels walked up.

"Almighty God wants to see you," he told Darby.

Darby smiled a little, but it was a weak kind of smile. "Ah, sure," he said. Be off with ya now. Tell Almighty God I don't want to be takin' up His time."

"You better get there," the angel told Darby.

Darby's knees had a bit of a wobble in them, and his wings shivered a little as he stood before Almighty God.

"Sure, now Darby," God said. "Where were you for the big fight?"

"Ah," Darby said. "I was up in me tower."

"Darby," God said, kind of sad, "you didn't fight for me."

"That's terrible true," Darby said, and fingered his

Paddy Sullivan's saloon real oasis

TAPPAN, N.Y. (AP) — Nobody knows how it got there — leprechauns, some say — but last night in the dark of the moon a green stripe appeared down the middle of Oak Tree Road in front of Paddy Sullivan's saloon.

Paddy can't remember a St. Patrick's Day when the very same miracle did not occur.

"Last year they had a terrible time, those leprechauns," he said. "The names of some of them were Hennessy, Carroll, O'Rourke, Healy and yes, Sullivan. Last year they were out there with snow shovels and brooms and had to paint the stripe three times."

Sullivan's Tappan Inn, Paddy's place, is the sort of institution Samuel Johnson must have had in mind when he called a tavern the worthiest font of happiness ever contrived by man.

It is a comfortable old shingled house, nearly as old as the nation, and sits beside the railroad track in an unheated little village which is even older.

The bar is honest mahogany, tilted slightly toward the patient by the weight of many a weary elbow and washed down to the bare wood by many an overflowing cup o' kindness. An adjoining room is for eating, singing and general carrying on.

"It's a quiet place, a family place," Paddy Sullivan said. "Well, on weekends it can become a little noisy, but nothing like what happens on St. Patrick's Day. On St. Patrick's Day this is one wild place, I'll tell you."

"The boys from the Rockland Inn bagpipe band will be here with a mighty thirst after the parade. They always make it. Tom O'Connor will be here with his tin whistle. He always is. All the regulars will be here and hundreds more."

"It puzzles me where they come from. This is an out-of-the-way place but somehow people find it. Last year there were so many they couldn't get inside.

It could be the corned beef and cabbage done to a turn by Paddy's wife Kathleen, or Paddy's mother's Irish soda bread, or Tommy Dunn's tenor voice, or the sign on the wall that says "Cead Mile Failte" — a hundred thousand welcomes, but, yes, Sullivan's lures Celts all right, and not just on the great saint's day.

It isn't unusual for a passing freight to stop so the crew can dash in for a wee drop of the creature with Paddy.

One afternoon the train stopped for two hours, split in half so as not to block

Crime figure mum on advance knowledge of JFK death plot

WASHINGTON (AP) — A reputed underworld chief's refusal to say whether he knew in advance that President John F. Kennedy would be assassinated may launch a new congressional investigation into the long-debated Cuban-Mafia connection with the murder.

But the House Assassinations Committee's grilling of Santo Traficante on Wednesday shed no light on how much evidence the panel has to support that connection.

In a session reminiscent of the late Sen. Estes Kefauver's racketeer hearings in the 1950s, Traficante refused to answer any questions, even after he was threatened with contempt of Congress.

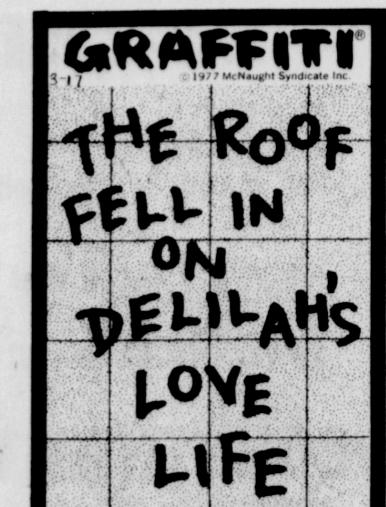

The 62-year-old former Cuban gambling czar pleaded his rights under the Fifth and other amendments more than a dozen times.

The two key questions put to Traficante — whether he knew in advance that Kennedy was to be killed and whether he knew Jack Ruby, the man who killed Lee Harvey Oswald — were raised by journalist-author George Crile III in a Washington Post article last year.

Crile, a Harper's Magazine editor,

Carter plan may not survive

Tax showdown set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The two members of Congress with the greatest say about the nation's tax laws seem headed toward a showdown over how best to help American businesses fight unemployment during the current recession.

Neither Sen. Russell B. Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, nor Rep. Al Ullman, who heads the House Ways and Means Committee, has embraced the White House proposal. That means President Carter apparently has little hope of winning with his plan.

However, Long favors a hiring incentive with no limit on the number of workers. Like Carter, Long also wants to increase the investment tax credit, which the House refused to do.

reward businesses for hiring up to 24 new workers.

But Long favors a hiring incentive with no limit on the number of workers.

Like Carter, Long also wants to increase the investment tax credit, which the House refused to do.

Without that change, persons who received previously tax-exempt sick pay or who claimed an exemption for a portion of foreign earnings would face higher taxes when they file their 1976 returns, which are due by April 15 of this year.

Under the old law, workers could pay no taxes on up to $5,200 a year paid while they were sick or injured.

Congress last year abolished that tax break except for persons who are permanently and totally disabled, meaning higher taxes for 1.5 million persons.

Congress also reduced from $20,000 to $15,000 the amount of wages earned abroad that could escape U.S. taxation.

If Congress concurs with the committee's unanimous action, the two benefits would be restored for all of 1976.

Miner tells of hours awaiting rescue

Tapping sounds ended long silence

TOWER CITY, Pa. (AP) — After the flood hit, the first thing I did was listen for some noise, any noise. But there was only silence. I was trapped in a coal mine.

I should have been in a panic, I guess. But for some reason I had no fear. I don't know how to explain that.

I guess God didn't put fear in my head. But He had given me strength I never knew I had.

The silence was broken by the thump of coal lumps falling. Otherwise it was quiet.

Then I felt some air coming in and I started to crawl down into the mine shaft. Nearly 80 feet down it was blocked by broken timbers and rock and coal.

I decided to head back up the shaft because it was the only place the rescue crews would know where I could be.

I crawled past the body of my buddy, Ralph Renninger, and found a safe place to sit. My light was still pretty bright. I looked around trying to think of what to do and that's when I started praying to God.

I've prayed to God before but not like that day. I asked God also, "Why me being left alive?"

I was getting pretty cold. I was soaking wet. I took off my boots and dumped the water out. After that I tried to get warm by shifting around a little.

I couldn't find anyone. And I couldn't find any way out.

Columbus junior seeks rights to graduation

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The mother of a 15 year old high school junior from southwestern Franklin County is suing to allow her daughter to participate in graduation ceremonies this spring.

Kimberly Clark will have completed in June the minimum number of class units required by the state for graduation. But because she is not a senior, the Hamilton Local School District Board of Education has denied her permission to take part in commencement exercises.

In her suit, Mrs. Clark contends the local board of education wants to give her daughter the diploma "in private, in the office of the principal."

Hoffman denied that, saying he was willing to "give Kimberly her diploma anywhere she wanted."

Kimberly, who has taken advanced courses in mathematics and science while completing her requirements in three years instead of the usual four,

has been on the school's honor roll every grading period.

While she was about it, Kimberly was also in the school's marching and concert bands, she was a majorette and featured baton twirler, directed a school musical play, was president of the drama club, president of her freshman class, on the staff of the school yearbook and a member of the Future Teachers of America.

Kimberly, who will be 16 in July, plans to begin music studies next fall at Otterbein College or Ohio University. After that she wants to enter law school and become a trial lawyer.

Continue the inquiry

The change in leadership of the House assassinations committee augurs well for the future of a congressional inquiry into the deaths of President Kennedy and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Whatever the rights and wrongs of the matter may have been, the dispute between the former chairman and the staff director had thoroughly disrupted the committee's work. Now there is some basis for hope that it can again be set on the right track.

This is much to be desired. It would be a serious miscarriage of congressional intent, reflecting widespread public concern, were the inquiry to be abandoned. For the dispute, though bitter and impassioned, had little bearing on the committee's mandate.

That mandate was, and is, to make a definitive new study of the assassinations in an effort to satisfy the doubts still felt by many Americans. This has not yet been done: the work has only begun, and the investigative staff has been much hampered not only by the above mentioned dispute but by contention over the level of committee funding.

Nothing should be allowed to interfere with continuation of the inquiry. The funding conflict can be resolved. With Rep. Louis Stokes replacing Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez as chairman, the main obstacle to going forward has been removed. In our judgment the national interest would be best served by continuing the committee, reaffirming its mandate, and letting it get on with the job.

Search for roots understandable

A missive which comes this way from Escondido, Calif., speaks scornfully of the pitiful right wing oracles... right wing columnists like Hart, Buchanan, Chamberlain, Rusher, Buckley, Reagan, Kilpatrick, Efron... as motley a crew of self-righteous, know-it-all, self-anointed patriots as ever infested this nation... 'Roots' is racist,' they in unison pontifically declare.'

I don't mind in the least being put in the same basket with Hart, Kilpatrick, Reagan, Buckley, Reagan, Kilpatrick, Efron... as motley a crew of self-righteous, know-it-all, self-anointed patriots as ever infested this

It could be heretical of me, but I have the utmost sympathy for Alex Haley's painful efforts to trace a black family's lineage back through slavery time to Africa. If the TV spectacular that was made from his story tends to play down the role of warring tribal chiefs in selling captured enemies to European and Arab slavers, it does not necessarily turn Haley's narrative into an anti-white ripoff.

Maybe I am being innocent, but, since nobody can be responsible for his ancestors or his ancestor's friends, the thought of feeling guilty because white Anglo-Saxons engaged in the slave trade did not cross my mind.

Preoccupation with ancestry has not been my particular bag. I have a fan-shaped chart that my father spent endless hours filling in, tracing Chamberlains back to England through the Massachusetts Bay Colony. The chart is fascinating, and my father obviously took great relish in tracking down the Bartletts, Hosmers, Kingsleys and whoever happened to marry into the main line of the family. But he was not concerned in the least with ferreting out information about the black sheep who, undoubtedly, were part of the historical kaleidoscope.

The presence of Welsh names in the lineage did not move him to make marginal notations about the barbarous treatment of the Celts by Saxons in English history. Nor, when my father married Emily Davis, whose own forebears were as much Welsh as English, did he make out a second fan-shaped chart dating back to pre-Tudor struggles on the Welsh border that might have yielded stories of wrongs similar to those visited by one black tribe upon another.

If you are going to condemn "Roots" for one-sidedness, you would have to take issue with the patriotic societies that worry very little about the treatment of the British Tories who had to flee the 13 colonies to make new starts in Nova Scotia or the Bahama Islands.

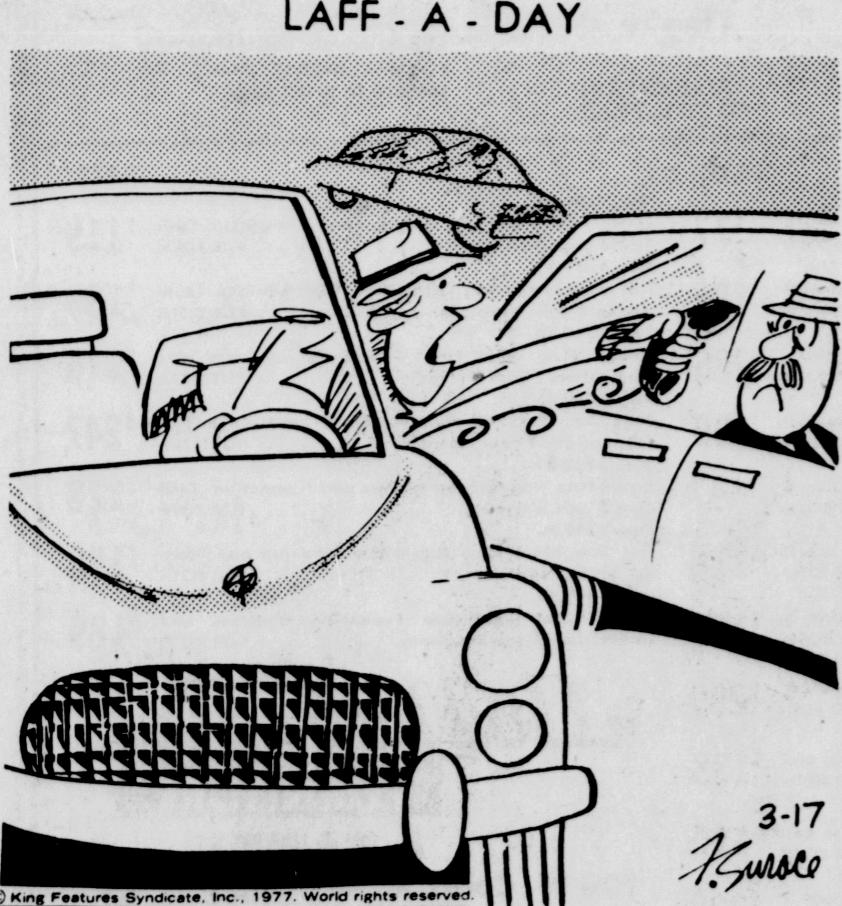

I don't take issue with the patriotic societies. The wrongs visited upon the Tories are a part of history that has to be accepted. We are today what we have become over a full two centuries, and it is only common sense to feel protective about the land we have inherited. We aren't going to sell it back to the Indians, who never had a system of land tenure anyway. Nor are we going to return it to Britain. It is interesting, of course, when an occasional Kenneth Roberts tries to write about the American Revolution from the Tory point of view. But there is no agonizing about our ancestors' prejudices.

Since the world is full of people whose grandfathers could neither read nor write and therefore left no records, the attempt to trace roots is bound to be filled with snags. But, for what it is worth, it is only human to be interested in one's origins insofar as one can determine them. John Dos Passos, the novelist whose father was a Portuguese-American, beguiled himself in his old age with writing a history of Portugal. His obvious pride in the country that once shared most of the New World with Spain was not lessened by the darker episodes involved in the colonization of Brazil or Mozambique or Angola.

Texans take a rightful pride in the story of the Alamo. I would not try to force down their throats the opinion of literary historian Vernon Parrington, who once tried to tell us that the real Davy Crockett was a wastrel.

Everybody needs traditions, the blacks among us included. Long ago as not forgotten critic, Waldo Frank, himself a Jew, wrote a beautiful book called "Our America." He accepted every ethnic strain in this country as one would accept the elements of a symphony. Ethnicity bores me personally, but I do like symphonies. And if groups new to the search for roots happen to go overboard in the effort to get in on the music, one can be charitable about obvious lapses in historical accuracy.

Most medics agree exercise is good

NEW YORK (AP) — Looking at the indolent, power-assisted American way of life, a physician who plays vigorous tennis at age 73 says: "Most of us don't wear out. We rust out."

Most heart specialists might well agree with that statement of Dr. Theodore G. Klumpp of New York, medical consultant to the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports.

Exercise, they say, is a heart tonic. It helps to prevent heart attacks. It probably makes attacks less severe if they do occur. And carefully prescribed, graduated exercises are one of their antidotes against another attack.

The American Heart Association says regular exercise "is at least prudent" as a hope of avoiding heart attacks and making heart transplants or artificial hearts unnecessary for potentially millions of men and women.

No one can actually prove that exercise is protective.

Some doctors, including those who don't exercise, say exercise is not necessary, or that it might even be harmful.

True enough. Joggers sometimes fall dead. So do some tennis players. But so also do some golfers, whose exercise may be no more than a leisurely walk, if they don't hop aboard golf carts.

About half of all heart attacks occur during sleep.

"Hard work never hurt a healthy heart," said the late Dr. Paul Dudley White, the eminent heart specialist who championed bicycling and hiking and life-long exercise. He died at age 87 from a stroke.

At age 88, Eula Weaver of Santa Monica, Calif., keeps winning gold medals for running mile and half-mile races in Senior Olympics events. She has six medals so far.

Tax revolt fades out

ELYRIA, Ohio (AP) — Elyria druggist John McCurry says he has changed his mind about withholding his income taxes in protest against pay raises voted by congressmen for themselves and some top government officials.

Last month, McCurry said he intended to place the income tax withholding deductions for himself and seven employees of his pharmacy in a special escrow account at a local bank.

But Tuesday he said he had met a March 15 deadline for periodic posting of taxes, saying he had been advised by a tax reform group "to pay my taxes because we have enough support behind us right now."

"We have about 5,000 or 6,000 signatures in this area alone... I think those signatures will have more impact than my not paying my taxes," he added.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I've been married to a professional man for 20 years. (I'll call him Joe.) We have a beautiful family, and I always thought we had a good marriage. Now I find out, quite by accident, that Joe has been having an affair with his secretary for more than two years.

I've had this girl in my home, and I really liked her. Joe says that he doesn't "love" her—he loves ME—but that all professional men "fool around." Then he went on to list all his colleagues we're friendly with, saying they all have girlfriends on the side.

Joe says it's all over between him and his secretary, but she practically runs his office and he "needs" her, so he's keeping her on.

He's always told me what a super wife, mother and bed partner I was. Now he says I wasn't really that great, but he didn't want to hurt my feelings or make me feel insecure.

Meanwhile, I can't look his secretary in the face, and I don't want to be in the company of his colleagues and their wives, knowing the men are cheating and their wives are being deceived.

Is there an answer to this nightmare? DISILLUSIONED AND HEART-BROKEN,

DEAR DIS: Your husband has behaved like a prize heel. And don't disregard the possibility that he implicated innocent colleagues to make his transgressions appear more commonplace.

All professional men do not cheat on their wives. If he "loves" you as he says he does, he will get rid of his secretary. And with the reference he can give her, one of his colleagues might be glad to hire her.

DEAR ABBY: I am 24 and am engaged to marry a man who is 40. This will be my first (and, I hope, my ONLY) wedding.

I started to plan a big, formal church wedding with all the trimmings—the kind every girl dreams about—but now I'm having second thoughts.

You see, my fiance is a divorced man with teenaged children. He and his first wife were hastily married by a judge, so this would be his first church wedding, too. He agrees to go along with my decision.

Abby, a few of my friends have expressed surprise that I would have a big flashy wedding even though my fiance is 40 and was previously married, and his first family lives in this rather small town.

What do the etiquette books say? And how do you feel about it?

SECOND THOUGHTS
DEAR SECOND: The etiquette books say that since this is YOUR first marriage, there are no restrictions on the kind of wedding you may have—providing your clergyman approves. I think considering the circumstances, a less "showy" wedding would be in better taste.

DEAR ABBY: I have a dear friend who is sweet, kind and intelligent. She is such a fine person and everyone likes her, and I would really like to help her.

She has one fault. Body odor. I don't know whether she uses deodorant; perhaps, it's caused by her taking so many vitamins. In any case, the odor even permeates her clothing.

I want so much to help her. Is there anything I can do without losing her friendship?

A FRIEND IN FLORIDA

DEAR FRIEND: Tell her in a very gentle and loving way. It would be a kindness.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Novels as miniseries were the rage in TV this season. Next season, it may be situation comedy in 60-minute form, augmenting the usual half-hour economy size, with ABC leading the charge.

ABC currently has four one-hour comedy pilots in the works. It would've had five, but "Malibu Beach," a tube version of those beach flicks of the early 1960s, went down as the surf came up.

We got all this from Stephen Gentry, a tall, lanky ex-Navy flier who now drives a desk for ABC as its vice president, programs, West Coast. He says the four possible one-hour comedy series are:

"San Pedro Bums," about a group of guys who grew up together, attended high school together and still hang out together.

"Love Boat," romance and heaving ho-hos on the high seas.

"Operation Petticoat," based on Cary Grant's 1959 movie comedy about World War Two's early days, the Navy submarine he ran and the group of pretty nurses he rescued with it.

"MacNamara's Band," another World War II comedy, this one set inland, with hijinks and heroics to occur behind enemy lines.

CBS says it has one 60-minute comedy pilot afoot, "Husbands and Wives." NBC says as of March 30, it's giving a five-episode tryout to "3 Girls 3," an hourly drama-comedy-variety show about show biz.

Gentry, a former radar officer on a Phantom jet, says no decision has been made on when ABC's comedies will appear as one-hour blips on our TV screens. But it might happen next fall or next midseason.

He was asked if the concept of the hourly comedy series is part of an effort by ABC to mollify those who gripe about TV violence.

"Our desire to have more comedy and diversity in the schedule is partially an outgrowth of that," he conceded. He also was asked if this could lead to cop and private eye shows getting the bum's rush.

"Well, I can't answer that specifically based on one-hour comedies," he said. "All I'm saying is that it's true we're trying to get more comedy on the schedule."

Fight brews over ethics, school trustees

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Efforts are under way to head off an Ohio Ethics Commission rule that brings state university and college trustees under the state's financial disclosure law.

The Senate Ways and Means Committee voted 5-3 to exempt them from a bill extending disclosure to other similar officeholders.

However, the same bill still must be approved by the Senate and House, and some who feel the trustees should not be excluded said they will fight to put them back in. Sen. Michael Schwarzwald, D-16, Columbus, wants to do it, and is "immovable" in his convictions, he said.

Controversy has been brewing for several months since the ethics commission adopted Dec. 9, 1976, its rule to expand disclosure to nearly 100 appointed state officials who now do not have to publicly list the sources of their incomes. Elected officials and others now in the law must list sources of their income, not the amounts.

A spokesman for the commission said the new rule was "not aimed at the universities," but that it did include them, among a myriad of others on similar boards and commissions.

The rule states that disclosure must be made by all members when one member of a board or commission is appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. This is true of all trustees of educational institutions.

Thus, should the pending bill be enacted in its present form, it would take precedence over the rule and mean that the trustees would be exempt from having to file at all.

Sen. Marigene Valiquette, D-11 Toledo, introduced the bill that brought trustees under the law until the Senate committee deleted them earlier this month. Her measure, making important other expansions, is now in the Senate Rules Committee awaiting assignment to a floor vote.

Valiquette offered the amendment deleting the university trustees, by simply saying that unsalaried officials are exempt, at the request of University of Toledo officials, she said. But she told the committee she didn't have strong feelings about it one way or the other. She is not a member of the ways and means committee.

The Lucas County lawmaker's measure extends the financial disclosure requirements to those of officials being paid under state Salary Schedule "C" (administrators). It would expand disclosure to department directors or deputy directors not now covered, superintendents of state institutions, and county welfare directors, along with others in administrative and policy making positions.

Schwarzwald and two others on the ways and means committee, Sens. Robert O'Shaughnessy, D-15 Columbus, and Charles L. Butts, D-23 Cleveland, said they felt the trustees hold "powerful" positions, and make vital decisions on such things as the awarding of construction and personal service contracts, involving large amounts of money.

"It's irrelevant to me that they aren't paid. Some trustees even seek out the job," said Schwarzwald.

The ethics commission held a public hearing last Nov. 4 after announcing its proposed rule expansion. It did produce objections from some trustees but not many.

Among those testifying against inclusion were trustees from several technical colleges along with Bowling Green State University (Charles Shanklin), the University of Toledo (Stephen Stranahan), and Youngstown State (Carl L. Dennison and William S. Mittler).

The Toledo Blade carried an editorial in its Feb. 20 editions, deplored the proposed exemption of university trustees from the disclosure requirement.

It concluded that if the trustees are to be placed "in any special category in that regard because of the nature of their positions, it ought to be as exemplary leaders, not whining laggards."

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The White House has barred photographers and reporters from a United Nations reception for President Carter tonight, apparently to prevent him being caught with a representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Carter is already under fire from Jewish organizations because the PLO's observer to the United Nations, Hasan Abdel Rahman, has been invited to the reception Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim is giving after a speech by the President in the General Assembly hall at U.N. headquarters.

A U.N. spokesman said the President and Waldheim would not head a receiving line to shake hands with each of the 300 guests but instead would circulate among them. The spokesman said this was being done because the reception would only last an hour, but it also would enable Carter to avoid Rahman if he wants to.

The spokesman said at the request of the White House, Waldheim had also banned all photographs of the reception as well as the closed-circuit telecast which had been promised U.N. correspondents because they were not invited.

"We have to respect the wishes of our distinguished guest," said the spokesman.

Waldheim at first invited only the chief delegates from the 147 U.N. member countries, but the U.N. observers from Switzerland and the Vatican, which are not members of the world organization, complained at being left out.

The spokesman said at the request of the White House, Waldheim had also banned all photographs of the reception as well as the closed-circuit telecast which had been promised U.N. correspondents because they were not invited.

"We have to respect the wishes of our distinguished guest," said the spokesman.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The White House has barred photographers and reporters from a United Nations reception for President Carter tonight, apparently to prevent him being caught with a representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Carter is already under fire from Jewish organizations because the PLO's observer to the United Nations, Hasan Abdel Rahman, has been invited to the reception Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim is giving after a speech by the President in the General Assembly hall at U.N. headquarters.

A U.N. spokesman said the President and Waldheim would not head a receiving line to shake hands with each of the 300 guests but instead would circulate among them. The spokesman said this was being done because the reception would only last an hour, but it also would enable Carter to avoid Rahman if he wants to.

Carter jealously guards privacy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, a private man in a public profession, is jealous of time spent with his family and does not encourage interruptions for less-than-urgent business.

"I guess it's been at least a month since I've been over to the second floor," said Press Secretary Jody Powell, referring to the Carter family's White House living quarters.

On the infrequent occasions when Powell has gone there, he acknowledged, it has been with the implicit advance approval of the President.

If Powell and other key aides feel they must talk to Carter after office hours, they reach him by telephone first and, whenever possible, transact their business that way.

"After all, there's only one of him and there are half a dozen of us," said Powell, suggesting that if aides felt free to invade Carter's privacy at will, he never would have time to himself.

In trying to draw a demarcation line between office hours and private time, Carter is mirroring the habits of President John F. Kennedy who, if anything, was more zealous about erecting an unseen but universally respected barricade between the living quarters and the White House offices.

Among recent presidents, only Lyndon B. Johnson invited regular visitations by favorite assistants, reporters, new-found acquaintances and others. As the door mat at LBJ's Texas ranch read: "All the world is welcome here."

Carter has placed atop his Oval Office desk a bronze plaque on a wooden base that reads, "Oh God, Thy sea is so great and my boat is so small." It's the gift from his old Navy boss, Adm. Hyman Rickover.

Also on the desk is a blackbound Bible atop a typing-size white memo pad, a small bottle of water from the North Pole, collected last year by the nuclear submarine Gurnard, a ceramic donkey presented by Georgia Democrats during the party's 1976 convention, and the celebrated plaque, borrowed from the Harry S. Truman Library, that reads "The Buck Stops Here."

ming and show giant cabbages and tractors.

Newspapers that headlined accounts of victories over "the imperialist lackeys of the Americans" write of roadbuilding and food production on those southern battlefields.

You can still buy books about the spectacular victory in 1975 that collapsed the Saigon government and its army and ended the war. One such is a paperback, "Vuan Loc — Saigon," written by several veterans of the final battles.

But in half a dozen bookstores it was apparent that war books have given way to voluminous accounts of nation building and economic recovery, the two main preoccupations of the Hanoi government.

Gone along with the war books are the obvious symbols of the war days.

Workers have filled in the manholes around the lakes and along the main street that served as instant air raid shelter for the population during the American air raids.

Gone is the giant scoreboard two stories tall in downtown Hanoi that told the people about the war's progress with large red victory splashes painted across a map of South Vietnam.

War souvenirs are also in short supply.

Aides to the U.S. delegation seeking information about American war dead and those missing in action discovered in the bar of the Thong Nhat Hotel a showcase of local products. Among them were metal combs made from the wreckage of American warplanes, once a popular souvenir.

Col. William M. Hubbell, who used to fly against targets around Hanoi and is now deputy commander of the Joint Casualty Resolution Center in Thailand, bought one for a dollar.

"What the hell, the war's over now," he said.

"Well, I guess we are starting to take it all back home," said Roger Shields of the Defense Department as several other Americans bought the combs.

Hanoi teems with construction

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — At first glance it looks like the war is still on. Russian-built military trucks clog Hanoi's narrow streets. Green uniforms and pith helmets dominate the fashion scene on the crowded sidewalks.

Then you see that the trucks are filled with bricks, sand and other building materials, coming into the city to be used in rebuilding bombed buildings. Five years ago at the height of the war the trucks were loaded with ammunition and weapons and were heading out of town to war fronts in the South.

And on closer inspection, most of the people in military gear are not soldiers. They're workers utilizing the most available clothing.

What has not changed in Hanoi is the beehive industriousness that impressed visitors in the past. Now it is directed at rebuilding.

Highway billboards that used to display heroic pictures of peasant gunners shooting down American aircraft now extol the virtues of far-

Haley files suit against firm

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Alex Haley, author of the best-seller "Roots," has sued Doubleday & Co., accusing the publisher of failing to promote the book and underselling paperback rights.

Haley filed the $5 million damage suit Wednesday in Superior Court and claimed Doubleday violated its 1974 contract by not promoting the book through advertising and speaking engagements.

He said he had to promote "Roots" and negotiate the successful serialized television program based on the book.

The author also said Doubleday did not provide distributors with enough copies of the $12.50 hard-cover edition after the success of the television serial and many bookstores ran out.

Under contracts negotiated with Doubleday in 1964 and 1974, Haley receives 15 per cent royalties, or about $1.87 on each hard-cover book, and 50 per cent of the paperback license or rights plus about 35 cents on each paperback book sold.

Haley said Doubleday did not obtain an adequate contract for the paperback edition with Dell Publishing Co. because Dell is a Doubleday subsidiary.

The suit seeks $5 million punitive damages plus unspecified damages for lost potential profits and an injunction to stall publication of the paperback edition.

The book, which Haley spent 12 years researching, is the fictionalized account of his ancestors from Africa through slavery in America to post-Civil War freedom.

Rain falls on parched far west

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Drought-troubled Western states got some relief early today as rain fell in parts of California, Nevada, Utah and Arizona.

Snow was reported at higher elevations, and up to six inches of snow were expected to accumulate in northern Arizona mountains.

A winter storm watch was posted through tonight for Colorado mountain areas.

Gusty winds accompanied a cold front that moved across Southwestern states and into the Southern Plains states.

A high wind warning was issued for the Texas Panhandle, where gusts were to reach 40 miles per hour and create dust problems.

Skies were cloudy to partly cloudy overnight in the Rocky Mountain region and Plains states. Showers were reported in west Texas and southeast Kansas. Snow fell in Minnesota, Oregon, Montana and northern Atlantic Coast states.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 71 at Del Rio, Texas, and several Florida cities to 14 at Marquette, Mich.

Temperatures were to be cool in the Northeast and from the Rockies to the Pacific Coast. Elsewhere readings were to be mild.

The proper recipe for a four-to-one Martini will sound more complicated when liquor industry completes its switch to the metric system on that date.

Mix 177.42 milliliters of gin and 44.355 milliliters of vermouth over one-half liter of cracked ice and shake gently. Pour into chilled glasses and add an olive or twist of lemon, about 2.5 centimeters long.

National Distillers Inc., which switched over its bottling plant in Cincinnati, the largest in the nation, this month is banking on lots of such conversions in hopes of convincing the American public that like it or not, the metric system is here.

"Frankly," said Ron Van Vactor, vice president in charge of the switch-over, "we're turning a nightmare into a sales program and try to sell it with fun."

He said his firm is the first major liquor producer to begin the switch which is a "risk" because National Distillers does not want to be the only one to make the switch.

Van Vactor said this is why the firm chose to eliminate the half gallon bottles first substituting the 1.75 liter bottle, called the "Party Size."

Alabama man invents rain-proof windshield without wipers

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — In a nation that loves gadgets and gimmicks — and pays royally for them even if they don't work — it seems someone would have invented Joe Newman to his latest invention.

It's a rain-proof windshield without wipers.

That's right. Hook the device atop your car or truck and escape the blurring splatter of a thunderstorm or the irritating squish-squish-squish of wipers batting away at a summer shower.

At least Joe Newman, who once invented a knife with wings and plastic-coated barbells, says it works real fine.

"It is amazingly simple," said Newman, an athletic 40-year-old who has turned fiddling with gadgets into a livelihood. He unveiled his latest creation this week.

"Inventing is the easiest part. I think everybody comes up with a great idea in their life. But sticking with it to see that it's produced is the hardest part," he said.

In brief "The Newman Windshield Rain Preventer" is an adjustable panel that shoots out above the windshield, to a maximum three feet, and keeps rain away something like an odd rectangular umbrella.

Newman said his inspiration came one day 12 years ago when a young fellow, driving in a summer rainstorm, couldn't see where he was going and crashed into Newman's car.

"I told the police it was a shame he got a ticket. It wasn't his fault. It was the inefficiency of his windshield wipers," he said.

That set him to thinking. What could do a better job than windshield wipers? Over the next several years he juked a few wrong-headed ideas but would be inspired again "every time I was out driving and it started raining."

He finally hit on the right gadget, he said, and hooked the device above his windshield by attaching poles to the luggage rack atop his car. He adjusted it by pulling ropes.

Pulling ropes, of course, would be too troublesome for drivers also steering the car, so he devised a small hydraulic pump that adjusts the panel with the twist of a wrist. Where the panel is set depends on how hard the rain is falling and how fast the car is going.

The invention is in the hands of his patent attorneys in Washington, he said, and he has been contacted by a few truck manufacturers who "think it works real well." He said he is planning overtures to carmakers, conceding that corporation designers one day will come up with a more sophisticated and esthetically pleasing model.

In the meantime he's pleased. "The automobile has been improved on time and again for nearly a century," he said, "but the windshield wiper went all that time with hardly a change for the better."

Newman is a graduate of the University of Alabama but gave up a white collar job for fulltime inventing 17 years ago.

He said inventing, design and theory come naturally to him and that he spends most of his time scribbling ideas on paper atop a table at home.

He has only a few more tools around the house than your ordinary homeowner, he said, but he has the full support of his wife, a big plus for a man who pays the bills, in part, by dreaming.

Senators promote Ohio coal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — With the House deliberating its version, four state senators came up with their plan Wednesday to develop and promote the use of the Ohio's high sulfur coal.

Freshman Sen. Kinsey Milleson, D-30 Freeport, with three committee chairmen as cosponsors, offered a sweeping proposal which even includes use of the state's top environmental agency, an unseeing ally.

This winter's natural gas crisis focused sharp attention on the problems involved in the burning of Ohio coal. During the crunch, Gov. James A. Rhodes and others pointed out there is about a 500-year supply, and called it Ohio's only reliable future energy source. Legislative reaction followed.

The House bill increases the severance tax of two cents a ton to raise

$1 million a year for research, but also seeks to pressure utilities into using "dirty" coal by prohibiting them from passing the higher costs of cleaner, out-of-state coal along to consumers.

Milleson's measure takes a somewhat different approach.

Joining Milleson on the bill were Senate Finance Chairman Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, Energy and Utilities Chairman Neal F. Zimmers Jr., D-5 Dayton, and Health and Education Chairman M. Morris Jackson, D-21 Cleveland.

The fledgling senator would require the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency "to encourage the combustion of coal mined in this state to the fullest extent possible while attaining and maintaining ambient air quality standards."

He also provides that the EPA must require the use of "flue gas" desulfurization equipment where essential to maintain standards, and encourage the development of methods to remove the sulfur before the coal undergoes combustion.

Next, the new bill permits utilities, without approval of the Public Utilities Commission, as now required, to issue stocks and bonds or to acquire other indebtedness to purchase desulfurization equipment.

Tony Boyle's release set

MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — W.A. "Tony" Boyle, former president of the United Mine Workers union, will be released on $250,000 bail Thursday from a state prison where he had been serving a life sentence for ordering the assassination of a union rival.

Boyle, 75, is awaiting a new trial on charges of murdering Joseph "Jock" Yablonski; his wife, and daughter, on Dec. 31, 1969.

The state Supreme Court set aside the three 1975 murder convictions last month on the grounds Boyle was prevented from presenting a complete defense by the trial judge in Delaware County.

Cash of $25,000, representing 10 per cent of the total bail as required by law, was posted with the clerk of the county court Tuesday.

On Thursday, Joseph A. Palazzo, chief deputy clerk, will fly to Pittsburgh to present the bail certificate to the superintendent of the Western State Correctional Institution where Boyle has been jailed for nearly a year. Boyle was transferred there after completing a federal sentence for illegal use of union funds.

Boyle reportedly will be met at the prison by his daughter, Antoinette, who will take him back to his home in Washington, D.C.

Col. James Kilbourne, who surveyed and named Bucyrus in his youth, later told how he happened to choose the name of the town, honoring his boyhood hero, the Persian general Cyrus and adding "Bu" as a prefix for "beautiful." He was so enamored of the town, one historian says, that he wrote an eight-stanza poem in praise of it.

The Blue Lines

Musical brings sites of Bangkok to WSHS

The Scene is Bangkok in the early 1860's. An English schoolteacher has accepted the job to teach the royal children of the King of Siam. This is where the excitement begins; the schoolteacher and the King have clashing personalities.

Anna Leonowens, the schoolteacher, is what you would call your early women's libber in the 1800's and her opposition is the powerful and most arrogant King of Siam.

Regardless of the conflicting ideas about a woman's place, it is apparent the two fall in love, yet they never really declare so.

What is all this about? The time has come again for the Washington Senior High School spring musical.

This year it is the "King & I". Some familiar tunes from the play are "Whistle a Happy Tune", "Getting To Know You", and "Hello Young Lovers".

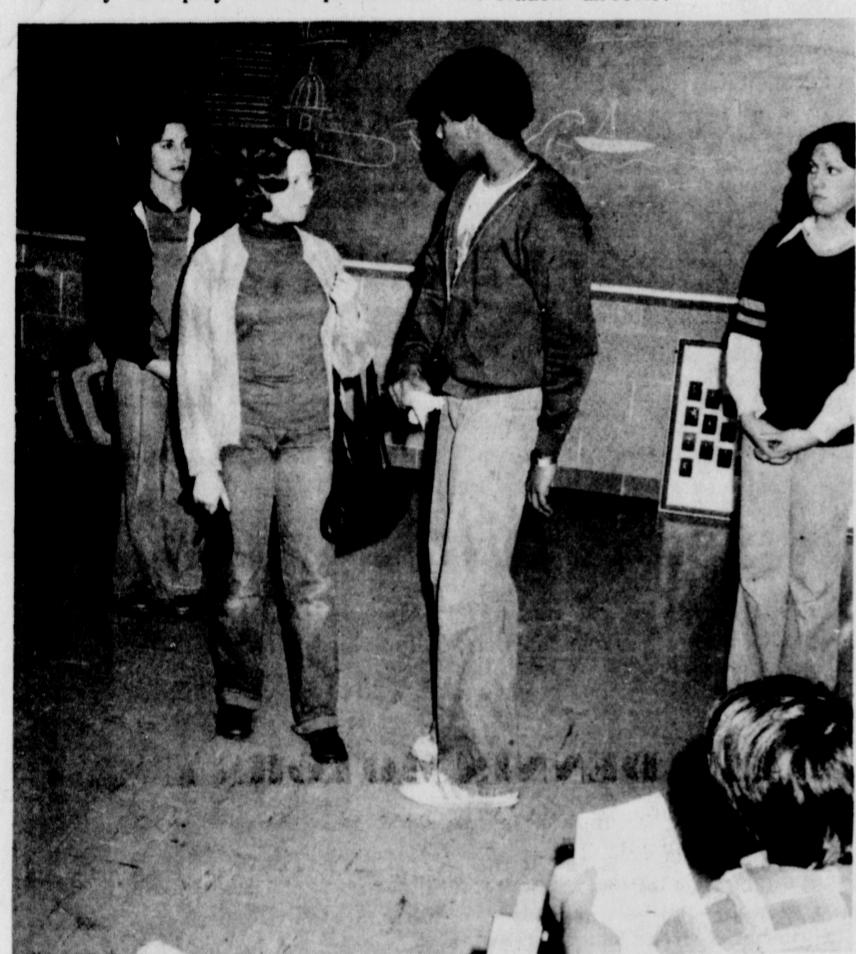

Many of you will remember this play was performed by our school in 1966 and was quite a success. Well, the cast of the play in 1977 say they will be as equally successful or even more so.

The cast is in their second week of practice and things seem to be running smoothly. The play will be presented April 22 and 23 at the Middle School Auditorium.

The members of the cast are as follows: Captain Orton - Paul Lockman, Louis Leonowens - Eric Croker, Anna Leonowens - Sue Stapleton, interpreter - Tracy Hawk, the Kralahome - Mike McDonald, the King - Mike Qualls, Phra Alack - Dick Welch, Tuptim - Brenda Wonderleigh, Lady Thiang - Toni Conley, Prince Chulalongkorn - Brian Connell, Princess Ying Yaowalak - Kim Elcess, Lun Tha - John Rhodes, Sir Edward Ramsey - Gary Huysman.

The royal dancers include Kitten Anderson, Beth Harris, Shelly Dove, Robin Hendron, Susan Pommett, Tracy Osterle, Susan Moore, Linda Warner, Kitten Sagar, Susan Stewart. The King's wives include Kathy Ginn, Gloria Bolender, Jean Lago, Sandy Spears, Lynn Fichner, Jean Osborne, Jennifer Cox, Becky Ragland. The priests are Keith Hottinger, Jean Winiger, Jim Conley.

The slaves are Phil Kimmet, Brian Buck, Dan Rodgers, Duane Six, John Denen, Mark Heiny, Scott Johnson, Tom Dean, Jeff Elliott, Jeff Deweese. Kathy Wallace and Nancy Gosse are the directors, and Robin Brakeall is the student director.

STEVE BAUGHN

Washington 'Seniors of the Week'

One of the honored seniors this week is Kennard Beverly. He resides with his father Mr. Kennard Beverly, four brothers, and two sisters at 510 S. North Street.

Kennard is taking Consumer Education, ROTC, English, Geography, Social Psychology and Business Law.

His activities in school consist of being a member of Hi-Y, AFS, Future Teachers, and working in the audiovisual room.

Kennard enjoys collecting records and learning the new dances.

In the future, Kennard plans to join the service and would like to further his education.

As a word of advice to us all, Kennard replied, "Students should work hard and stay in school." We feel this is the best advice a senior could give.

Kimberly Kay Kirk is another one of our featured seniors of the week. She resides at U.S. 62 with her parents, James and Edith Kirk, and her sister Tammy, 14, who is a student at Bloomingburg School.

In her spare time, Kim enjoys swimming, riding around, and just being with her friends.

This school year Kim is taking Speech I, Mythology, Band, Home Ec., Non-Majors, and Family Living.

For three years Kimberly has been marching at every football game and in the parades with the band. She has been a 4-H member for five years and a member of American Field Service and Y-Teens for three years each.

Kim's yet undecided about her future plans, but leaves this comment to the underclassmen: "I've had a lot of fun this year, and I hope all of you have fun next year as our class has had." Good Luck!

Another featured senior this week is Rick Roberts. Rick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Roberts, of 614 Sycamore Street.

His courses this year are American Government, Mythology, Science Fiction, DE I, and DE II.

Being such an active ROTC member, Rick's spare time is somewhat limited. But, when he does have time, he can either be found working on cars or talking on citizen's band radios. Hunting and fishing are also favorite activities of his.

His activities this year include Rociteers of which he is treasurer.

Rick is quite an accomplished Rociteer, having been awarded Honor Cadet twice, Distinguished First Year Cadet, Exemplary Conduct, the Aptitude Award, Exemplary Personal Appearance, NST Honor Platoon, member of the Rifle Team, and past color guard commander.

Rick is to leave in October for Orlando, Fla., for basic training in the U.S. Navy. From Florida he will be going to school and major in aviation electronics. Afterwards, he hopes to be assigned to a fleet.

"I enjoyed high school, but if I were to do it again I would get more involved. As far as graduation, I can't wait." These were the comments of Steve Baughn.

Steve is 18 years old and resides at 168 Eastview Road with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Baughn. Steve has one brother, Brian, who is 4 years old.

His hobbies include riding bicycles, motorcycles, and bowling. He has been Past Master of DeMolay. Steve is also a member of Grace United Methodist Church and has been listed in "Who's Who Among American High School Students."

Foreign exchange student adapts well to U.S. life

By MIKE QUALLS

Can you imagine how you would feel if you were suddenly in some foreign country and didn't know a soul there? You would probably feel very alone and depressed. Right? Wrong! Well at least that's not how Jean Winiger, our foreign exchange student from Switzerland, felt about his new situation.

Jean had few problems adjusting to his new life here in the United States. He had some difficulty with language since he learned English and we speak American. What we mean by that is, there are certain distinct differences in the way we say man, can, understand, etc... and the way the English say them. The English don't put as much accent on the "an" part of those words.

Jean has many friends at school which can only be attributed to his easy going and likable personality. Jean in turn thinks the students at Washington Senior High School are very friendly and easy to get along with. When asked what he liked most about the U.S. Jean replied, "everything, especially the quarter pounders with cheese."

Jean misses his home and friends and he thinks about them often but he says he's never really been homesick. He feels that his stay has really been a good experience for him so far.

"It will be a very sad time when I have to leave Washington C.H.," Jean said.

The Point After

By MARK REA

When the gymnasium clocks at the Ohio University Convocation Center and the Ban Johnson Field House at Marietta College ticked off to :00, the SCOL closed out five months of basketball.

Only fitting for Fayette County fans was the fact that both Washington C.H. and Miami Trace were the sole survivors in tournament play. Unfortunately, both lost on the same night more than 100 miles from home.

Looking back on predictions we made before the season, we can only hope we do better next season. We picked Wilmington to finish second. We were close; they were undefeated this season.

Our top club, Miami Trace, did not work out to our expectations. They struggled through a miserable first half before playing some of the best basketball in their final games. They ended up in a tie for third with Circleville at 6-6.

We were close with Madison Plains, although the Eagles couldn't win for two months. They finished fifth; we picked them fourth.

Three teams we hit on the nose. We picked Circleville third, Hillsboro sixth, and Greenfield McClain seventh. Circleville had to suffer through just one home game in its first nine contests. Hillsboro narrowly missed a .500 season at 9-10 while McClain never quite got off the ground after a flying 3-0 start. They lost 14 of their last 16, including 11 league losses in a row.

But, the most glaring error in the whole list for us was picking Washington C.H. to finish fifth. They were in the race until the last day before dropping to Wilmington. They finished with a 10-2 league record when many people figured they would do well to capture a 6-6 mark.

With only one starter back, the Lions just didn't figure to do much in the SCOL. But, Lions head coach Gary Shaffer stayed with John Denen alongside Sam McClendon, Dee Hart Foster, and Tom Dean while switching Terry Wilson and Mark Burke at the fifth spot.

Denen responded with over 300 rebounds while Foster, McClendon, and Dean previously unproven on the varsity level) scoring in double figures constantly.

After looking back, and not exactly happy about what we see, it's time for a look ahead.

1960 must have been a very good year. Not for wins, but for SCOL basketball talent. It is nearly unbelievable that most of this season's big efforts came from juniors.

Rattling off a list of juniors is practically listing the all-SCOL team. In addition to Denen, Art Schlichter, Gary Williams, Bill Hanners, Toren Bensonhaver, and David Nared will all be back in uniform next season.

In the 1977-78 season, Trace will be in good shape as they lost only Dan Gifford from the front-liners. Using Schlichter, Hanners, Tom Richardson, Glen Cobb, and Dave Glass, they would field all experienced starters and a possible SCOL winner.

Hillsboro is losing all of their first team as Gary Larimer, Tim Sharkey, Randy Sanders, Gary Coffman and Tim Fuller are all seniors this season.

Greenfield McClain will lose its top players with Chuck Cole and Eric Dunson graduating. And Madison Plains will curse graduation day as well when Gary Self, Doug Sifrit, and Pete Sullivan become alumni.

Circleville's top two performers, Brent Wright and Frank Merrill, will also be gone, although Bensonhaver will still be around.

The Washington C.H. will be faced with nearly the same problem as last year. Denen will return, but Foster, Dean, McClendon, and Burke have played their final games on the Lion hardwood. But, don't count them out after this season.

Don't count any of these statements as predictions because track, baseball, and softball are now on the SCOL collective minds. And there's football to worry about after that. But, sometime next November, SCOL sports will once again move inside with eight teams as Teays Valley joins the league. Then, we will try to do a little better.

'Ladies of the Mets' baseball cheerleaders

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — New York Mets' rookie Lee Mazzilli dumped a bunt in front of the plate. Catcher Ted Simmons of the Cardinals pounced on the ball and, in desperate haste, threw wildly past first base.

Mazzilli, his legs churning, scampered around second and headed for third.

Two young ladies on the front row at Al Lang Stadium leaped simultaneously to their feet and began emitting high-pitched screams.

"Go, go, go," yelled Whitney De Roulet, 25.

"No, no, no, you can't make it," came the soprano call of Bebe De Roulet, 23.

It's a scene often repeated during the regular baseball season at Shea Stadium in New York with a third member of the party, striking Mrs. Vincent De Roulet, the mother, showing only slightly less exuberance.

They're "The Ladies of the Mets," and they're not ornaments or window dressing. They're completely involved.

Mrs. De Roulet is the Mets' president, successor to her mother, Mrs. Charles Payson, who died in October 1975. With son Dan, 22, committed to a career in New York, the daughters appear to be the ultimate heirs to the franchise, thus prolonging a maternal, apronstrings wedge in a world of tough, cigar-smoking baseball directors.

Mrs. De Roulet, as did her mother, sits in the higher councils. She is the first woman permitted on the dais at the strictly stag New York Baseball Writers' Dinner.

Whitney, wearing a famous family name, is assistant director of the public relations. Bebe has the same post in the promotions department. Both work 9-to-5 shifts and draw moderate salaries.

Both have become avid baseball fans, as has Mrs. De Roulet, who recalls how her grandmother, Mrs. John Payne Whitney of the thoroughbred racing Whitneys, used to sit by her radio and run a gamut of emotions with the old New York Giants.

The diamond fervor was passed on to Joan, who subsequently married a New York executive, Charles Payson. When Mrs. Payson died, her husband retained 48 per cent ownership with 32 per cent divided among four children—Mrs. De Roulet, two sisters and a brother, John.

"I remember grandmother's interest in the Giants and my mother used to take me to games as a child," Mrs. De Roulet said. "Then I drifted away for a while."

Vincent De Roulet, a Californian who was once ambassador to Jamaica, died in August 1975.

Whitney was the first of the daughters to get interested in baseball.

"I disliked it with passion at first," acknowledged Bebe. "I wanted to travel. I went to South America, Peru and Paris. My main interest was riding horses — in shows and going fox-hunting."

"I fell in love with the Mets right away," said Whitney. "I started going to a lot of games in 1964. I would sit with Edna Stengel. It was fascinating."

The two daughters share their favorite personalities on the club. "We both adore Joe Torre, Koos (pitcher Jerry Koosman), Ed Kranepool and Jerry Grote," said Bebe. "The older ones. They're unaffected, like a big warm blanket."

NBC faces no Series

NEW YORK (AP) — Year Two of the Great Baseball Compromise is upon us and NBC is faced with an unusual situation.

For the first time in 30 years, NBC will NOT televise the World Series. That honor falls to ABC as the result of a four-year deal baseball signed with both networks last year.

"Not having the World Series is obviously important to us," says Chet Simmons, the NBC veteran recently named vice president for sports. "The guys who have worked on baseball are disappointed. But they're all realists and they understand business arrangements."

Under the agreement, NBC gets

Saturday afternoon games, ABC gets Monday nights and the two alternate the World Series, playoffs and All-Star Game. NBC will have the playoffs and the All-Star Game this time around.

With less than one month to go before opening day, NBC has got its plans pretty well set. Joe Garagiola and Tony Kubek return as the announcers with Jim Simpson and Maury Wills as the backup team. The package will open April 9 with a rare national doubleheader featuring both World Series teams — the New York Yankees vs. Milwaukee and Cincinnati against San Diego.

In addition, NBC is going to try a late-night game on July 2.

Magics still in hunt for second title

Barberton crushes Canton McKinley

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Twins Mark and Marty Bodnar, who have been averaging a combined 33 points per game, were held to only eight apiece Wednesday night, but that didn't phase Barberton's run for a second straight high school Class AAA basketball championship.

"This is the way we have played all year," Barberton Coach Jack Greynolds said after the Magics destroyed Canton McKinley 89-64 in the Canton regional semifinals.

"If they (the opponents) shut somebody off, somebody else picks up the slack," Greynolds said. "Our opponents can't concentrate on any one guy."

In this case it was Carter Scott who took up the slack, pouring in a career-high 36 points, 14 more than his average, as top-ranked Barberton extended its winning streak to 49 games and advanced to the regional finals Saturday against the winner of tonight's clash between Warren Western Reserve and Cleveland St. Ignatius.

In other high school tournament action Wednesday night, Kettering Alter beat Cincinnati Princeton 62-52 and Cincinnati LaSalle whipped Vandalia-Butler 72-59 in the Dayton Class AAA regional and will face off Saturday night for a berth in the state tournament, while New Bremen downed Mount Blanchard Riverdale 67-51 in the Bowling Green Class A regional.

Tournament play tonight features No. 4 Richmond Dale Southeastern versus Lucasville Valley and former state champion Strasburg against ShadySide in the Ohio University Class A regional, with North College Hill facing Columbus Bexley and surprising Springfield Shawnee taking on Dayton Jefferson in the Dayton Class AA semifinals.

Underdogs take on Titans

"It's like Chuck Wepner fighting Muhammad Ali."

That's the way Detroit Coach Dick Vitale looks at his school's task tonight as the Titans go up against top-ranked Michigan in the Mideast Regional of the NCAA basketball tournament.

"We're the underdog fighting the large national school," Vitale explained. "They have the million-dollar sports program. And we have not had the athletic heritage — no football program and other programs like they have. They know how to win and know what it is."

Michigan Coach Johnny Orr is also looking forward to the matchup with the 12th-ranked Titans, calling it "the greatest game for fan interest in our state's history."

The game between Michigan, 25-3, and Detroit, 25-3, will be the nightcap of the Mideast Regional doubleheader at Lexington, Ky. In the opener, No. 6 Syracuse, 26-3, plays No. 17 North Carolina-Charlotte, 24-3.

Oakland still 'wheeling and dealing'

OAKLAND (AP) — Phil Garner, the outstanding young infielder seeking the financial status several of his former Oakland A's teammates reached last fall as baseball's free agents, went to Pittsburgh in a nine-player trade Wednesday.

"I'm sorry to lose him," said A's owner Charles O. Finley in Chicago. "But, Garner told me, 'So many other seem to be doing it, I'm going to play out my option and make some big money unless you want to sign me for what I want.' I was forced to trade him."

Garner began contract negotiations asking for $1.8 million over four years and his last request was for an even $1 million, an $800,000 bonus for signing and $50,000 salary for four years Finley said.

The A's received six players from Pittsburgh, including starting pitcher Doc Medich, who was 8-11 last year after winning 49 games in three seasons with the New York Yankees. Medich, 28, upon learning of the trade, said he was considering leaving baseball and concentrating on his medical school studies.

"If he quite, he quits," said Finley. "To be honest, I still think its one of the best deals the A's have ever made, and I now think we're definitely a contender for the division championship in 1977."

The A's also acquired 37-year-old reliever Dave Guisti, 5-4 last year, and four young players Finley called excellent prospects: pitchers Rick

Langford and Doug Bair, and infielders Tony Armas and Mitchell Page. Veteran infielder Tommy Helms and 22-year-old pitcher Chris Batton accompanied Garner to the Pirates.

Garner has spent his first two major league seasons at second base, but the Pirates will move him to third, the position he played in college and in the minors. Chuck Tanner, the A's manager last year, now manages the Pirates.

"By the end of spring training, he should be able to adjust to third base," said Harding Peterson, the Pirates' personnel director of the 27-year-old infielder who batted .261 and drove in 74 runs last season.

Garner was the only remaining member of last year's starting Oakland infield. First baseman Don Baylor, shortstop Bert Campaneris and third baseman Sal Bando were among the six A's who became free agents after the season and signed lucrative contracts with other teams.

Finley attempted to sell two of those six, Joe Rudi and Rollie Fingers, to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million apiece last June but commissioner Bowie Kuhn wouldn't allow the sale. Kuhn, being sued by Finley over that ruling, had no objection to Wednesday's trade.

"The Oakland A's would be the strongest team in baseball today if Bowie Kuhn hadn't destroyed temporarily, thank God—the Oakland franchise when he cancelled the deal," Finley said.

The A's traded another unsigned player, reliever Jim Todd, to the Chicago Cubs for veteran starter Joe Coleman Tuesday night. The unsigned players on Finley's roster include pitchers Paul Mitchell and Mike Norris and outfielder Claudell Washington.

"The A's are not through wheeling and dealing," Finley promised.

Later Wednesday, the A's announced that veteran pitcher Tom Bradley, formerly with the Chicago White Sox and San Francisco Giants, had been given his unconditional release.

Driessen standing in shadow

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds' Dan Driessen says he isn't heading into the 1977 baseball season with a monkey on his back.

"I'm going to do what Dan Driessen can do, not what Tony Perez can do," said the 25-year-old infielder whose youth and vast potential triggered the trade of Tony Perez, a longtime crowd favorite at Riverfront Stadium.

Driessen, doesn't expect to be automatically accepted as the replacement for Perez. In fact, he plans on earning respect back from Cincinnati crowds that booed him during the 1977 trial at third base.

"I know there will be some boos," said Driessen, who until now was better known as the National League's first designated hitter. He batted .357 during the Reds' World Series rout of the New York Yankees.

His major priority is a good start, both with his glove and bat.

After two weeks of spring training, he has handled first base adeptly and at bat, well, he is the Dan Driessen that manager Sparky Anderson has loudly heralded.

Driessen is the hottest hitter in the Reds camp, with an 8-for-16 performance.

"If I can get off to a good start, I can hit .300," said the 195-pound Hilton Head, S.C., native, who was signed as a free agent in 1970.

After four years of riding the bench,

Driessen is getting his big opportunity. Reds President Bob Howsam, said it was "painful to lose a guy like Tony," but he is supremely confident Driessen will be a solid successor to the popular Cuban who batted in a club record 1115 runs.

"It wouldn't be right for me to try to imitate another player," said Driessen, who hit .300 as a 1973 rookie, but dipped to .247 last year in a utility role.

"I'm looking forward to playing every day. It beats getting all torn up inside, knowing that you could play somewhere else," he said.

He is undisturbed by talk that he is a liability on defense.

"I'm not going to kid anybody. I did not like playing third base. First base is my natural position. I think I can hit, run and field," he said.

Sabres rip Barons, 6-2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Buffalo Sabres no longer have a game in hand over the Boston Bruins. Instead, they have two points, which is even better.

Gilbert Perreault scored two goals and added an assist in leading the Sabres to a 6-2 victory over the Cleveland Barons Wednesday night, giving Buffalo a two-point edge over idle Boston in the battle for first place in the National Hockey League's Adams Division. Both have nine games remaining.

Buffalo's Rick Martin and Cleveland's Dave Gardner traded first-period goals before the Sabres, winners of 15 of their last 19 games, took command early in the second period as Perreault poked home his 34th goal of the season on a power play and assisted on Jocelyn Guevremont's goal less than two minutes later.

Buffalo put it away in the first 14 minutes of the third period on goals by Bill Hajt, Gary McAdam and Perreault, who has 11 goals and nine assists in his last 12 games.

Elsewhere in the NHL, the Seattle SuperSonics edged the Washington Bullets 100-96, the Phoenix Suns beat the New York Knicks 124-91, the Indiana Pacers defeated the Denver Nuggets 109-98, the Philadelphia 76ers topped the Atlanta Hawks 109-100 and the Houston Rockets beat the New York Nets 100-86.

In the only World Hockey Association contest, the Cincinnati Stingers edged the Calgary Cowboys 4-3.

49ers being sold

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — It's almost official. The San Francisco 49ers have been sold to Edward J. Bartolo Jr. of Youngstown, Ohio, subject to approval of National Football League owners at their March 28 meeting in Phoenix.

Lou Spadia, president of the 49ers, said Tuesday an agreement had been reached in principle for the sale that is expected to make DeBartolo, 30, the NFL's youngest owner.

The sale price was not announced, but has been estimated at $16.5 million for more than 80 per cent of outstanding shares. The deal was financed by DeBartolo's father, a millionaire Youngstown contractor and developer and owner of Thistledown race track in suburban Cleveland.

Carter plan may not survive

Tax showdown set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The two members of Congress with the greatest say about the nation's tax laws seem headed toward a showdown over how best to help American businesses fight unemployment during the current recession.

Neither Sen. Russell B. Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, nor Rep. Al Ullman, who heads the House Ways and Means Committee, has embraced the White House proposal. That means President Carter apparently has little hope of winning with his plan.

However, Long's committee has approved a compromise that lies about halfway between the approaches favored by Ullman and Carter. If Long's stand is upheld by the full Senate, a House-Senate conference committee would work out the differences. And the conferees would be unable to consider half of Carter's business plan.

The House, following the lead of Ullman's committee, passed the tax cut bill with a "jobs credit" that would reward businesses for hiring up to 24 new workers.

But Long favors a hiring incentive with no limit on the number of workers. Like Carter, Long also wants to increase the investment tax credit, which the House refused to do.

But neither chairman backs Carter's proposal to give businesses the option of reducing their taxes by taking a credit on the Social Security payroll taxes they pay.

The finance committee, writing its version of a tax cut for individuals and business, tentatively agreed to vote today on Carter's plan to give most Americans a $50-per-person tax rebate this spring. That plan, approved in modified form by the House, also includes a permanent tax cut for 45 million couples or individuals who do not itemize deductions.

The panel voted Wednesday to delay for one year the effective date of two 1976 tax law changes that otherwise would mean higher taxes retroactively for sick pay recipients and Americans who work abroad.

Although the 1976 law was enacted only in October, the two changes were made retroactive to Jan. 1, 1976. The committee's action, which is widely supported in the House and Senate, would delay the effective date until Jan. 1, 1977.

Without that change, persons who received previously tax-exempt sick pay or who claimed an exemption for a portion of foreign earnings would face higher taxes when they file their 1976 returns, which are due by April 15 of this year.

Under the old law, workers could pay no taxes on up to $5,200 a year paid while they were sick or injured. Congress last year abolished that tax break except for persons who are permanently and totally disabled, meaning higher taxes for 1.5 million persons.

Congress also reduced from $20,000 to $15,000 the amount of wages earned abroad that could escape U.S. taxation.

If Congress concurs with the committee's unanimous action, the two benefits would be restored for all of 1976.

Miner tells of hours awaiting rescue

Tapping sounds ended long silence

TOWER CITY, Pa. (AP) — After the flood hit, the first thing I did was listen for some noise, any noise. But there was only silence. I was trapped in a coal mine.

I should have been in a panic, I guess. But for some reason I had no fear. I don't know how to explain that.

I guess God didn't put fear in my head. But He had given me strength I never knew I had.

The silence was broken by the thump of coal lumps falling. Otherwise it was quiet.

Then I felt some air coming in and I started out to find where it was coming from.

Holding my miner's light in my hand — I lost my hardhat in the water — I went searching for the air, for way out, for anyone who might have been trapped with me.

I couldn't find anyone. And I couldn't find any way out.

I started to crawl down into the mine shaft. Nearly 80 feet down it was blocked by broken timbers and rock and coal.

I decided to head back up the shaft because it was the only place the rescue crews would know where I could be.

I crawled past the body of my buddy, Ralph Renninger, and found a safe place to sit. My light was still pretty bright. I looked around trying to think of what to do and that's when I started praying to God.

I've prayed to God before but not like I did that day. I asked God also, "Why me being left alive?"

I was getting pretty cold. I was soaking wet. I took off my boots and dumped the water out. After that I tried to get warm by shifting around a little

THE CARNEGIE Public Library children's department, calling attention to the celebration of National Library Week April 17-23, is sponsoring a design-a-bookmark contest for school children grades 1-9 . . .

The bookmark, symbolic of the many services offered by the public library, may be decorated in the manner of the artist's choosing, emphasizing slogans and themes appropriate to National Library Week . . .

Kathy Halverson, children's librarian, said there will be judging in three categories: first to third grades, fourth to sixth grades and seventh to ninth grades . . . A first, second and third place prize will be awarded in each age group. All bookmarks must be submitted by Saturday, April 16 and winners will be announced on Monday, April 18 . . .

All bookmarks submitted will be displayed in the library during National Library Week . . . Children may enter the contest by bringing their handwork into the children's department before the deadline . . .

The bookmarks must be approximately 8½ by 2½ inches . . . The name, school, grade and telephone number of each entrant must be on the back of the entry . . . Any type of paper may be used and all entries should have an appropriate book or library theme . . .

I didn't have any food but I did find a jug of water that had come up from the flooding. It didn't have much in it. I rationed that because I had no idea how long I was going to be in there. I only took a little sip at a time, to make my lips wet, and just a little to swallow. I told myself that as long as I had water I could live until someone reached me.

I didn't look at my watch, but two hours must have passed since the water gushed in. I thought of my kids and my wife — what they must be going through and how they were taking it. It was really bothering me.

As I was thinking of my family I started getting groggy and tired. I fell asleep for a while but woke up cold and shaking.

I began listening again. I wanted to see if I could hear any noise at all. Any kind of tapping.

But it was dead silence. It was like a tomb down there.

"Ron," I said to myself, "you got to get a piece of metal, something real hard, and start tapping yourself."

I found a six-foot piece of steel and I started tapping. I did it every five minutes at the start. Then sometimes every three minutes. Then every 10 minutes. But no one answered. I was alone.

I wasn't scared. I didn't cry. I just prayed.

I started to doze off again but woke up cold. I think it was about 9 o'clock at night.

I started to tap, but still no answer. So I tried to get some sleep.

This time when I woke up I think it was morning. I started tapping again. What else could I do?

My light was completely dead. I was in the dark. I kept doing pushups to warm up, and to keep my senses, and to stop shaking.

I knew the bodies of Ralph and

Lions show preparations continue

With only 11 days remaining until the opening curtain, preparations for the Washington C.H. Lions Club's annual variety show are nearing completion.

The show's singers, dancers and those involved in specialty acts and skits are adding the final touches to the "Showboat: Then and Now" production.

The always-popular show will be presented at 8 p.m. Monday, March 28 and Tuesday, March 29 in the Washington C.H. Middle School auditorium. A full dress rehearsal will be held Sunday, March 27.

Rehearsals, which were launched in January, are being held in Fayette Progressive School building on S. Fayette Street, but the practice sessions will be shifted to the Middle School next week.

Mrs. Cinda Stinson, variety show director, said this year's production involving nearly 100 cast members will be a combination of nostalgic and contemporary music. The entertainment program will also be spiced with snappy dance routines, the usual rib-tickling comedy skits and specialty acts.

More than 700 seats have been reserved for the two performances. Tickets priced at $2 per person, can be purchased from any Lions Club member.

Proceeds from the show are used by

You're all Irish today

It was a long time ago. Before you were born. Before your parents were born.

In fact, there were no people. There was only God and the angels, up there in heaven.

Now there were three angels of note in heaven. Each had a large following.

The first angel's name was Michael. Ah, he was a magnificent lad, too. Strong and trustworthy, everywhere he went people would say, "Sure and there goes Michael."

The second angel's name was Lucifer. Now he was a fine strapping lad, too, to be sure. Lucifer was a proud one, he was, and he had a lot of followers.

He's Got Gab

Now the third angel's name was Darby O'Gill. While Darby wasn't as strong or as eye-catching as Michael and Lucifer, he had a terrific gift of the gab, you see.

Darby would stand around in the derby he always wore and talk to his lads. Darby's followers were the type who enjoyed that sort of thing.

The only problem was that Darby never was real sure what he wanted to do. For example, now, one of his lads would say, "Hey, Darby, let's go over by the moon and play catch."

"Oh, maybe yes, now and maybe no. I can't make up my mind."

Well, one day Almighty God called all the angels together and told them he was going to create man. Then He told them He'd give man a lot of advantages, but that if man fouled things up, then God would send His Son to save man.

Angels Disagree

If He did that, God said, His Son would become a man, and all the angels would have to obey the God-Man.

The angels left and talked it over. "I won't do it," Lucifer said. "I'm an angel. I won't obey some man."

Almighty God said we should," Michael said. "That's good enough for me."

"I won't serve," Lucifer said, and all his followers hooted and said they wouldn't either.

So a great war started to brew in heaven. Over on one side of the everlasting hills, Michael's army trained for the big battle.

And on the other side of heaven, Lucifer's troops got ready.

One day Michael came to Darby and said, "Darby, are ya with me?"

And Darby said, "Sure, Michael, you're a fine lad. But so's Lucifer. And you've got a strong army. But so does Lucifer. I can't make up my mind."

Then Lucifer came and said, "Darby, tell me right now. Whose side are ya on?"

He Can Decide Not

"Ah, you're both fine lads," Darby said. "I can't make up my mind."

After Lucifer left, Darby's followers added, "And sure, chief, what'er we gonna do?"

Darby thought and thought.

"Tell ya what," he said, "We'll build a big tower, and watch the fight. Why we'll have a magnificent view. Then, when the fight's over, we'll go down and congratulate the winner."

Now Darby's followers being just like him, they thought the idea was a bonny one. So while the armies trained, Darby and his angels built their tower.

The big day came and Darby and his boys climbed up into their tower and looked out over the battlefield.

First thing ya know, the two armies came rushing at each other and met with the mightiest crash the universe had ever heard.

Lucifer Winning

Darby watched closely, and the first thing ya know, it looked like Lucifer's army was by far getting the best of it.

"Atta boy, Lucifer," Darby shouted. He nudged the angel next to him. "Sure, he's a fine lad," Darby said.

"Fine, indeed," the other angel said, and they both nodded.

But then Michael rallied his forces, and started to win.

"That a way, Michael lad," Darby shouted, and all in the tower cheered.

Well, the battle went back and forth. It was the biggest donnybrook ever known before or since.

But Michael won. He pushed Lucifer and his crew to the edge of heaven, and then knocked them over and way down to the new place Almighty God had created just for the occasion.

Darby and his boys looked over at the new place, and then hurried down to meet Michael. "Glory be to God," Darby said, as he hurried down the stairs, "I certainly wouldn't want to go there."

Michael Congratulated

Darby's boys ran out to meet Michael. "Well well, well," Darby said to Michael. "I never doubted ya for a wee bit of a minute. A fine fight, First Rate."

But Michael, tired from the fight, just smiled a little half smile at Darby.

A little while later, say, when Darby and his boys were talking over the fight and sipping a little moon water, one of Michael's angels walked up.

"Almighty God wants to see you," he told Darby.

Darby smiled a little, but it was a weak kind of smile. "Ah, sure," he said. Be off with ya now. Tell Almighty God I don't want to be takin' up His time."

"You better get there," the angel told Darby.

Darby's knees had a bit of a wobble in them, and his wings shivered a little as he stood before Almighty God.

"Sure, now Darby," God said. "Where were you for the big fight?"

"Ah," Darby said. "I was up in me tower."

"Darby," God said, kind of sad, "you didn't fight for me."

"That's terrible true," Darby said, and fingered his hat and peeked up at Almighty God. "But I didn't fight against ya either, if I might respectfully submit."

Something Special

God smiled again. There was something about Darby.

"Darby," God said, "I can't let you stay here, because you didn't fight on my side. And I won't send you to the new place, because you didn't fight against me."

"Well that's a load off me mind," Darby said.

"Tell you what," God said. "You look over the whole universe, and pick out any place you want. When you find it, I'll change you and your followers into a different shape and you can go there and live."

So Darby thanked Almighty God, and then he gathered his followers, and they searched all over the universe.

They looked and looked and finally, while they were passing over earth, one of Darby's followers grabbed him by the shoulder and said, "Glory be Darby, look at that."

Well, it was the prettiest place in all the universe. It was a little island, all soft and green, shining there in the ocean like a jewel.

Darby looked and they all oohed and aahed, and they knew they'd go there.

Darby went and told Almighty God, who smiled again and said, "Darby, you're no fool. You've chosen the best place next to heaven."

And Almighty God waved His hands, and all of Darby's followers became wee little fellows in green suits and derby hats. But that was all that changed. They're still pretty much the same.

Today is that day. You're all Irish today. Have one on Darby O'Gill. Now you know how the leprechauns came to Ireland!!!

Ethics panel eyes mileage pay

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Legislators should not be paid a mileage allowance for weeks when they do not make a trip to Columbus, members of the House Ethics Committee say.

The committee is expected to adopt formal recommendations to that effect at a meeting next week.

Legislators currently are automatically reimbursed 15 cents-a-mile for travel expenses whenever the House is in session, whether they attend or not.

"In my opinion," Rep. Harry J. Lehman said at a Wednesday meeting of the Ethics Committee, "you should not be compensated if you are not here. Under present House policy, Lehman conceded that he and others have accepted the mileage allowance, even when they did not travel to the Statehouse. "I am embarrassed to have received it," the Cuyahoga County attorney said.

The Senate, which has not yet addressed the mileage issue, planned to vote today on renewal of a Code of Ethics.

With some individual reservations, committee members agreed that the practice of automatic reimbursement should be stopped, but they took no formal steps. Instead, Chairman Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, directed that a staff advisory opinion be drawn up, with the intent of presenting a recommendation to the full House membership.

"We're running scared because someone is saying something in the newspapers," complained Rep. Norman A. Murdock, R-21 Cincinnati, in reference to press reports of expense practice.

State law governing legislative expenses states that lawmakers are entitled to mileage for one weekly round trip. But it does not specifically say that reimbursement is contingent on actually making the trek.

"Obviously, anyone who is a lawyer can see," said Murdock, who is a lawyer, "that you get paid whether you make that trip or not." But Murdock said he agreed legislators should not collect when they miss a week.

Although the committee could recommend a change in the automatic payment policy, legislation would be required to clarify the law, Wilkowski said.

On a related issue, ethics panel members generally agreed legislators should receive the allowance, when they come to the Capital by some means other than driving their own car.

According to published reports, which have not been disputed, some legislators share rides or participate in looseknit car pools, while accepting mileage expenses. Others may travel by plane or rail, Wilkowski noted.

How you travel is "irrelevant," Lehman said, a legislator "should be compensated for traveling." That viewpoint will also be reflected in a staff advisory memo which will be presented to the committee next Wednesday, Wilkowski said.

But the committee also felt that a pending Senate bill to raise the mileage allowance to 18 cents could not legally be applied to the present session, assuming the bill passes.

President woos nation's citizens

CLINTON, Mass. (AP) — President Carter is setting out to woo diverse special interest groups in West Virginia after playing a Massachusetts mill town audience like an Irish harp.

Carter was bound for Charleston, W. Va., today and a marathon discussion of energy issues with a panel that includes coal and oil interests, environmentalists, the president of the United Mine Workers and a woman the White House identified only as "a consumer."

Later today, the President was scheduled to travel to New York where he is to address the United Nations.

The stop in the capital of the Mountaineer state was part of a two-day "meet-the-people" trip that began Wednesday with a nationally televised town hall meeting in hilly Clinton, Mass., a town of 13,500.

The grinning President, sporting a green-tinted carnation in his lapel, stepped before about 800 townfolk and answered questions for 90 minutes. He seemed to wow his St. Patrick's Day eve audience in a town where Irish Catholics make up the largest ethnic group.

Carter even was applauded when he promised, in a state that long cherished strict anti-birth control laws, that a welfare revision program to be unveiled Sept. 30 will "provide a permanent nationwide system of family planning" with birth control "opportunities for those who believe in them."

He answered questions on local problems, economics and world affairs. His only major pronouncement appeared to be his statement that an "ultimate requirement for a Middle East peace" is to resolve what he termed "the Palestinian problem."

He said: "There has to be a homeland provided for Palestinian refugees who have suffered for many, many years."

There was no immediate elaboration on what may have been an off-hand remark suggesting that he believes Palestinians should have territory of their own.

Housing measure pushes insulation

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Housing built in Ohio after July 1, 1979, would have to be insulated under standards prescribed by the state under a bill now awaiting action in the Senate.

Rep. C.J. McLin Jr., D-36 Dayton, said the cost of such insulation would be about $1,500 for a three-bedroom unit. But he estimated savings of about one-third on heating bills during the November through March heating season.

McLin won 65-31 House approval of his bill Wednesday, sending it to the Senate, after explaining that this winter's fuel crisis clearly demonstrated the need for greater conservation of natural gas and other fuels.

"We found that we had many uninsulated homes, too many rusted pipes, and too much loss of energy," the veteran Montgomery County lawmaker told the House.

Under his bill, the Ohio Board of Building Standards would mandate insulation requirements, spelled in the bill, through its supervision of local housing boards which issue building permits.

The bill makes exceptions for nonresidential buildings such as warehouses, barns and other structures in which no heat is required.

Senators, in major floor action Wednesday, added their approval 26-7 to a House measure that places restrictions on rent referrer agents who sell lists of apartment and other rental locations.

That measure, which now returns to the House for consideration of Senate changes, requires rental agents to enter into contracts with apartment hunters and return any part of a fee above $10, if a listed location is not rented.

Agents would be subject to penalties for providing false information, or for referring a potential tenant without the owner's permission—the abuses which led to the legislation, sponsors said.

By a vote of 30-3, senators sent the House a constitutional amendment making it easier for county voters to adopt a charter form of government.

Sen. Kenneth Cox, D-28 Barberton, the chief sponsor, said it permits the submission of once-defeated charter proposals for a second vote, and allows public officeholders to serve as members of charter commissions, which draw up charter proposals.

Cox noted that to date no Ohio county has approved a charter government, under which counties may assume legislative powers to govern areas outside cities. "County governments need more options as they seek to serve the people," said Cox, a former Barberton mayor.

Sen. Charles L. Butts, D-23 Cleveland, opposed the Cox proposal which also requires the approval of voters. He sees it, Butts said, as an effort by suburban interests to draw power away from central cities.

Crime figure

reported that a Cuban exile named Jose Aleman said Traffante told him in September 1962 that Kennedy would be killed.

Traffante, of Miami, was one of three underworld figures involved with the CIA in an abortive attempt to slay Cuba Premier Fidel Castro in 1960, according to the old Senate Intelligence Committee.

That committee investigated the Cuban-Mafia angle two years ago as part of its probe of CIA abuses. The committee concluded Castro was unlikely to have had a hand in Kennedy's slaying despite Castro's knowledge of underworld plots against him.

In Crile's article, Aleman, an FBI informant at the time, was quoted as saying that Traffante charged John and Robert Kennedy, the attorney general, took graft and did not keep a bargain.

"Have you seen how his brother is hitting (Teamster President Jimmy) Hoffa, a man who is a worker, who is not a millionaire, a friend of the blue collar?" Aleman quoted Traffante.

"He doesn't know that this kind of encounter is very delicate. Mark my words, this man Kennedy is in trouble and he will get what is coming to him."

Crile reported that when Aleman argued Kennedy would be re-elected in 1964, Traffante replied, "No, Jose, he is going to be hit."

Crile also quoted a British journalist, John Wilson, as saying that he was in a Havana prison with Traffante in 1959 and that Jack Ruby visited Traffante there.

Crile quoted Aleman as saying he reported the conversation to the FBI but agents took no notice of it until after Kennedy was assassinated on Nov. 22, 1963. Two FBI agents then questioned Aleman at length.

Really, it was freedom that I felt. I was finally going to get out of this place. I just couldn't wait. It was a wonderful feeling inside of me. I knew then I would see my family again.

Columbus junior seeks rights to graduation

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The mother of a 15 year old high school junior from southwestern Franklin County is suing to allow her daughter to participate in graduation ceremonies this spring.

Kimberly Clark will have completed in June the minimum number of class units required by the state for graduation. But because she is not a senior, the Hamilton Local School District Board of Education has denied her permission to take part in commencement exercises.

Mary N. Clark filed suit in the Franklin County Common Pleas Court on Tuesday seeking preliminary and permanent injunctions permitting Kimberly to graduate in regular ceremonies at Hamilton Township High School.

"Graduation is an important event,"

Kimberly says. "I have goals set and I feel it's something I've earned and that I'm entitled to the acknowledgement of my achievements by being in the ceremony."

Hamilton Local School Supt. Roger Hoffman said, "there was a request from Kim to the board to allow her an exception in her case to allow her to participate in commencement exercises." She had asked to be advanced from her status as a junior to a senior. Hoffman said the board decided on March 11 to deny her request.

Hoffman said there are no state standards relating to graduation ceremonies, just to the issuance of diplomas. He added that the ceremonies are a local matter governed by local boards.

"No one is denying her a diploma," Hoffman said. "The matter of local procedure is what is at issue."

In her suit, Mrs. Clark contends the local board of education wants to give her daughter the diploma "in private,

in the office of the principal."

Hoffman denied that, saying he was willing to "give Kimberly her diploma anywhere she wanted."

Kimberly, who has taken advanced courses in mathematics and science while completing her requirements in three years instead of the usual four,

has been on the school's honor roll every grading period.

While she was about it, Kimberly was also in the school's marching and concert bands, she was a majorette and featured baton twirler, directed a school musical play, was president of the drama club, president of her freshman class, on the staff of the school yearbook and a member of the Future Teachers of America.

Kimberly, who will be 16 in July, plans to begin music studies next fall at Oberlein College or Ohio University. After that she wants to enter law school and become a trial lawyer.

Opinion And Comment

Continue the inquiry

The change in leadership of the House assassinations committee augurs well for the future of a congressional inquiry into the deaths of President Kennedy and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Whatever the rights and wrongs of the matter may have been, the dispute between the former chairman and the staff director had thoroughly disrupted the committee's work. Now there is some basis for hope that it can again be set on the right track.

This is much to be desired. It would be a serious miscarriage of congressional intent, reflecting widespread public concern, were the inquiry to be abandoned. For the dispute, though bitter and impassioned, had little bearing on the committee's mandate.

That mandate was, and is, to make a definitive new study of the assassinations in an effort to satisfy the doubts still felt by many Americans. This has not yet been done; the work has only begun, and the investigative staff has been much hampered not only by the above mentioned dispute but by contention over the level of committee funding.

Nothing should be allowed to interfere with continuance of the inquiry. The funding conflict can be resolved. With Rep. Louis Stokes replacing Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez as chairman, the main obstacle to going forward has been removed. In our judgment the national interest would be best served by continuing the committee, reaffirming its mandate, and letting it get on with the job.

Search for roots understandable

A missive which comes this way from Escondido, Calif., speaks scornfully of "the pitiful right wing oracles... right wing columnists like Hart, Buchanan, Chamberlain, Rusher, Buckley, Reagan, Kilpatrick, Efron... as motley a crew of self-righteous, know-it-all, self-anointed patriots as ever infested this nation... 'Roots' is racist," they in unison pontifically declare."

I don't mind in the least being put in the same basket with Hart, Kilpatrick, Reagan, Buckley and Company when it comes to most of my opinions, but it so happens that previous to this moment I have not written a line about "Roots." So where is the pontification?

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

FRIDAY, MARCH 18

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) Give your imagination a bit more rein now. You have all the tools needed for success, so go forward — confidently hopeful of all outcomes.

TAURUS

(April 21 to May 21)

Favorable Venus influences give you many advantages, but you must promote your own interests to keep the ball rolling, of course. Romance in high favor.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

Stellar influences stimulate your innate strength of purpose and willingness to plough through rough terrain and up steep "hills." Plan for better tomorrows.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

Mixed influences. All activities will have to be well-organized before you can proceed efficiently. Emphasize composure, good judgment, delicacy of approach.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Think constructively and reckon with all possible contingencies before taking on new enterprises. In fact, day will be better for routine matters than for unusual ventures.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Give consideration to ideas and methods that "clocked" before, and could again. Add a bit of glamor to presentations. Be optimistic.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

You may not size up occupational situations as accurately as usual. Better double-check! On the personal side, romance and travel favored.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Some ungovernable moments indicated, but you can handle with native intelligence and astuteness. Just be sure to keep emotions under control.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

A good day for attaining one of your cherished goals. Someone behind the scenes is working in your interests.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

A fine day for teamwork. Many useful ideas will result from an exchange of views with associates. Some good news indicated in the p.m.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

A down-to-earth attitude needed. Don't let yourself be drawn into a whirlwind of rumor and speculation — now ripe in many quarters.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Don't let surface glitter beguile you. Search for facts before accepting any proposition — no matter how rosy it sounds.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a high order of intellect and an extremely outgoing personality — different from most Pisceans, who are usually more introspective. You have the extreme sensitivity of the Piscean, however, and are as quick to discern the needs of others. This coupling of talents makes you a "natural" in the fields of politics, education, the law, sociology and the management of large institutions. You also have the brilliant creativity bestowed by your Sign and, properly developed, could excel in the fields of art, music or literature. Science and fields involving travel are also congenial outlets for your talents. And, governed by Neptune, you will be inevitably attracted to all things maritime. Traits to curb: moodiness and tendencies toward excessive gambling.

It could be heretical of me, but I have the utmost sympathy for Alex Haley's painful efforts to trace a black family's lineage back through slavery time to Africa. If the TV spectacular that was made from his story tends to play down the role of warring tribal chiefs in selling captured enemies to European and Arab slavers, it does not necessarily turn Haley's narrative into an anti-white ripoff.

Maybe I am being innocent, but, since nobody can be responsible for his ancestors or his ancestor's friends, the thought of feeling guilty because white Anglo-Saxons engaged in the slave trade did not cross my mind.

Preoccupation with ancestry has not been my particular bag. I have a fan-shaped chart that my father spent endless hours filling in, tracing Chamberlains back to England through the Massachusetts Bay Colony. The chart is fascinating, and my father obviously took great relish in tracking down the Bartletts, Hosmers, Kingsleys and whoever happened to marry into the main line of the family. But he was not concerned in the least with ferreting out information about the black sheep who, undoubtedly, were part of the historical kaleidoscope.

The presence of Welsh names in the lineage did not move him to make marginal notations about the barbarous treatment of the Celts by Saxons in English history. Nor, when my father married Emily Davis, whose own forebears were as much Welsh as English, did he make out a second shaped chart dating back to pre-Tudor struggles on the Welsh border that might have yielded stories of wrongs similar to those visited by one black tribe upon another.

If you are going to condemn "Roots" for one-sidedness, you would have to take issue with the patriotic societies that worry very little about the treatment of the British Tories who had to flee the 13 colonies to make new starts in Nova Scotia or the Bahama Islands.

I don't take issue with the patriotic societies. The wrongs visited upon the Tories are a part of history that has to be accepted. We are today what we have become over a full two centuries, and it is only common sense to feel protective about the land we have inherited. We aren't going to sell it back to the Indians, who never had a system of land tenure anyway. Nor are we going to return it to Britain. It is interesting, of course, when an occasional Kenneth Roberts tries to write about the American Revolution from the Tory point of view. But there is no use agonizing about our ancestors' prejudices.

Since the world is full of people whose grandfathers could neither read nor write and therefore left no records, the attempt to trace roots is bound to be filled with snags. But, for what it is worth, it is only human to be interested in one's origins insofar as one can determine them. John Dos Passos, the novelist whose father was a Portuguese-American, beguiled himself in his old age with writing a history of Portugal. His obvious pride in the country that once shared most of the New World with Spain was not lessened by the darker episodes involved in the colonization of Brazil or Mozambique or Angola.

Texans take a rightful pride in the story of the Alamo. I would not try to force down their throats the opinion of literary historian Vernon Parrington, who once tried to tell us that the real Davy Crockett was a wastrel.

Everybody needs traditions, the blacks among us included. Long ago as non forgotten critic, Waldo Frank, himself a Jew, wrote a beautiful book called "Our America." He accepted every ethnic strain in this country as one would accept the elements of a symphony. Ethnicity bores me personally, but I do like symphonies. And if groups new to the search for roots happen to go overboard in the effort to get in on the music, one can be charitable about obvious lapses in historical accuracy.

Defiance College dean resigns

DEFIANCE, Ohio (AP) — Robert E. Ryan has resigned as dean of Defiance College. President Marvin J. Ludwig announced.

Ludwig gave no reason for the resignation, but said Ryan would remain in the job he has held for three years until a successor can be named.

Most medics agree

exercise is good

NEW YORK (AP) — Looking at the indolent, power-assisted American way of life, a physician who plays vigorous tennis at age 73 says: "Most of us don't wear out. We rust out."

Most heart specialists might well agree with that statement of Dr. Theodore G. Klumpp of New York, medical consultant to the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports.

Exercise, they say, is a heart tonic. It helps to prevent heart attacks. It probably makes attacks less severe if they do occur. And carefully prescribed, graduated exercises are one of their antidotes against another attack.

The American Heart Association says regular exercise "is at least prudent" as a hope of avoiding heart attacks and making heart transplants or artificial hearts unnecessary for potentially millions of men and women.

No one can actually prove that exercise is protective.

Some doctors, including those who don't exercise, say exercise is not necessary, or that it might even be harmful.

True enough. Joggers sometimes fall dead. So do some tennis players. But so also do some golfers, whose exercise may be no more than a leisurely walk, if they don't hop aboard golf carts.

About half of all heart attacks occur during sleep.

"Hard work never hurt a healthy heart," said the late Dr. Paul Dudley White, the eminent heart specialist who championed bicycling and hiking and life-long exercise. He died at age 87 from a stroke.

At age 88, Eula Weaver of Santa Monica, Calif., keeps winning gold medals for running mile and half-mile races in Senior Olympics events. She has six medals so far.

Tax revolt fades out

ELYRIA, Ohio (AP) — Elyria druggist John McCurry says he has changed his mind about withholding his income taxes in protest against pay raises voted by congressmen for themselves and some top government officials.

Last month, McCurry said he intended to place the income tax withholding deductions for himself and seven employees of his pharmacy in a special escrow account at a local bank.

But Tuesday he said he had met a March 15 deadline for periodic posting of taxes, saying he had been advised by a tax reform group "to pay my taxes because we have enough support behind us right now."

"We have about 5,000 or 6,000 signatures in this area alone... I think those signatures will have more impact than my not paying my taxes," he added.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

secretary-with references

DEAR ABBY: I've been married to a professional man for 20 years. (I'll call him Joe.) We have a beautiful family, and I always thought we had a good marriage. Now I find out, quite by accident, that Joe has been having an affair with his secretary for more than two years.

I've had this girl in my home, and I really liked her. Joe says that she doesn't "love" her — he loves ME—but that all professional men "fool around." Then he went on to list all his colleagues we're friendly with, saying they all have girlfriends on the side.

Joe says it's all over between him and his secretary, but she practically runs his office and he "needs" her, so he's keeping her on.

He's always told me what a super wife, mother and bed partner I was. Now he says I wasn't really that great, but he didn't want to hurt my feelings or make me feel insecure.

Meanwhile, I can't look his secretary in the face, and I don't want to be in the company of his colleagues and their wives, knowing the men are cheating and their wives are being deceived.

Is there an answer to this nightmare? DISILLUSIONED AND HEART-BROKEN,

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Novels as miniseries were the rage in TV this season. Next season, it may be situation comedy in 60-minute form, augmenting the usual half-hour economy size, with ABC leading the charge.

ABC currently has four one-hour comedy pilots in the works. It would've had five, but "Malibu Beach," a tube version of those beach flicks of the early 1960s, went down as the surf came up.

We got all this from Stephen Gentry, a tall, lanky ex-Navy flier who now drives a desk for ABC as its vice president, programs, West Coast. He says the four possible one-hour comedy series are:

— "San Pedro Bums," about a group of guys who grew up together, attended high school together and still hang out together.

— "Love Boat," romance and heaving ho-hos on the high seas.

— "Operation Petticoat," based on Cary Grant's 1959 movie comedy about World War II's early days, the Navy submarine he ran and the group of pretty nurses he rescued with it.

— "MacNamara's Band," another World War II comedy, this one set inland, with hijinks and heroics to occur behind enemy lines.

CBS says it has one 60-minute comedy pilot afoot, "Husbands and Wives." NBC says as of March 30, it's giving a five-episode tryout to "3 Girls 3," an hourly drama-comedy-variety show about show biz.

Gentry, a former radar officer on a Phantom jet, says no decision has been made on when ABC's comedies will appear as one-hour blips on our TV screens. But it might happen next fall or next midseason.

He was asked if the concept of the hourly comedy series is part of an effort by ABC to mollify those who gripe about TV violence.

"Our desire to have more comedy and diversity in the schedule is partially an outgrowth of that," he conceded. He also was asked if this could lead to cop and private eye shows getting the bum's rush.

"Well, I can't answer that specifically based on one-hour comedies," he said. "All I'm saying is that it's true we're trying to get more comedy on the schedule."

Lenten Concert

Fayette County Choral Society and Orchestra members who will perform the "Requiem" or "Mass for the Dead" in the Lenten Concert next Sunday have found it to be "music that grows in meaning and joy even after many hearings." The revered French musical authority Nadia Boulanger has written of this work by Gabriel Faure' (1845-1924): "If anything could truly mitigate for us the thought of death, it would be the image of hope, of serenity which he has made for us." She mentions also "its gentle confidence, its tende and tranquil expectancy—." And about the composer's method: "Everything is usual: but with an alteration, a passing note, some special inflection of which he has the secret, Gabriel Faure' gives a new and imitable character to all that he touches."

In order to achieve the best vocal sound, musicians prefer to sing the Requiem in Latin. It has seven separate parts, each containing Latin phrases long familiar to the general public:

1. Requiem aeternam dona eis Domine (Rest eternal grant them, Lord) Kyrie eleison (Lord, have mercy)

2. Domine, laudis offerimus (Lord, praise offer we)

3. Sanctus. Dominus Deus Sabaoth (Holy, Lord God of hosts)

4. Pie Jesu, dona eis requiem (Blessed Jesus, grant them rest)

5. Agnus Dei (Lamb of God)

6. Libera me, Domine, de morta aeterna (Deliver me, Lord, from death) dies irae, calamitatis (day of wrath and doom)

7. In paradisum deducant angeli (To paradise be thou conducted by angels)

Musical setting of the "Mass for the Dead" have been composed over the centuries also by Palestrina, Mozart, Belioz, Verdi and Dvorak. Music students have participated in "Requiem Festivals," performing representative choruses from the great Requiems.

Faure' is described as having been, in late-middle 19th Century France, "a vanguard unto himself" exerting his energy constantly on behalf of French modernism in music. Maurice Ravel was one of his pupils.

On Sunday the Chorus will sing besides the "Requiem" four brief sacred songs by contemporary American Composers Jane Marshall, Eugene Butler and the Choral Society Music Director W. Warren Parke. The program includes three solos: "Lord God of Abraham"; and "It Is Enough" by Mendelssohn and Malotte's "Twenty-Third Psalm," to be sung by Hostesses were Mrs. Spangler, chairman, Mrs. Climer and Mrs. Cox.

Fight brews over ethics, school trustees

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Efforts are under way to head off an Ohio Ethics Commission rule that brings state university and college trustees under the state's financial disclosure law.

The Senate Ways and Means Committee voted 5-3 to exempt them from a bill extending disclosure to other similar officeholders.

However, the same bill still must be approved by the Senate and House, and some who feel the trustees should not be excluded said they will fight to put them back in. Sen. Michael Schwarzwald, D-16, Columbus, has said he is "immovable" in his convictions, he said.

Controversy has been brewing for several months since the ethics commission adopted Dec. 9, 1976, its rule to expand disclosure to nearly 100 appointed state officials who now do not have to publicly list the sources of their incomes. Elected officials and others now in the law must list sources of their income, not the amounts.

A spokesman for the commission said the new rule was "not aimed at the universities", but that it did include them, among a myriad of others on similar boards and commissions.

The rule states that disclosure must be made by all members when one member of a board or commission is appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. This is true of all trustees of educational institutions.

However, Ronald Wolf, ethics commission spokesman, said the rule also includes such agencies as the public utilities commission, industrial commission, accountancy board, commission of aging, air quality development board, and many others.

Several college and university trustees, who receive no salary, have maintained the requirement is an unwarranted invasion of their privacy. Some, at Bowling Green State University and the University of Toledo, have been quoted as saying they will resign if the rule is permitted to stand.

William B. Coulter, vice chancellor of the Ohio Board of Regents, said the regents do not have a position on what he called "a very sensitive matter." They feel, he said, that the question is one of "very high legislative policy."

Although Coulter said he has heard "grumbling" among some trustees—"it's a new experience for them"—he does not believe they are ready to quit in large numbers. "I haven't seen a groundswell," he said.

The commission ruling takes effect April 1, but the trustees would not have to file their first disclosure statement until more than a year later, by April 1978.

Thus, should the pending bill be enacted in its present form, it would take precedence over the rule and mean that the trustees would be exempt from having to file at all.

Sen. Marigene Valiquette, D-11 Toledo, introduced the bill that brought trustees under the law until the Senate committee deleted them earlier this month. Her measure, making important other expansions, is now in the Senate Rules Committee awaiting a floor vote.

Valiquette offered the amendment deleting the university trustees, by simply saying that unsalaried officials are exempt, at the request of University of Toledo officials, she said. But she told the committee she didn't have strong feelings about it one way or the other. She is not a member of the ways and means committee.

The Lucas County lawmaker's measure extends the financial disclosure requirements to those of officials being paid under state Salary Schedule "C" (administrators). It would expand disclosure to department directors or deputy directors not now covered, superintendents of state institutions, and county welfare directors, along with others in administrative and policy making positions.

Schwarzwald and two others on the ways and means committee, Sens. Robert O'Shaughnessy, D-15 Columbus, and Charles L. Butts, D-23 Cleveland, said they felt the trustees hold "powerful" positions, and make vital decisions on such things as the awarding of construction and personal service contracts, involving large amounts of money.

"It's irrelevant to me that they aren't paid. Some trustees even seek out the job," said Schwarzwald.

The ethics commission held a public hearing last Nov. 4 after announcing its proposed rule expansion. It did produce objections from some trustees but not many.

Among those testifying against inclusion were trustees from several technical colleges along with Bowling Green State University (Charles Shanklin), the University of Toledo (Stephen Stranahan), and Youngstown State (Carl L. Dennison and William S. Mittler).

The Toledo Blade carried an editorial in its Feb. 20 editions, deplored the proposed exemption of university trustees from the disclosure requirement.

It concluded that if the trustees are to be placed "in any special category in that regard because of the nature of their positions, it ought to be as exemplary leaders, not whining laggards."

Farm Bureau chief says meet useful

WASHINGTON (AP) — C. William Swank, executive director of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, said Wednesday a two-day visit here with government officials produced good results.

"We have good contacts and found good respect for the thinking of these farmers," Swank said as he and 80 county farm bureau presidents prepared to return home.

The group wound up its visit by meeting Wednesday with Carol Foreman, the controversial nominee to become assistant secretary of agriculture for food and consumer services.

Swank said the group had not taken a position in support or opposition to the nomination.

But he said he was "pleased someone else (beside Foreman) will handle the marketing" programs in the Agriculture Department. Her job carries responsibilities for food inspection and grading along with food stamps and other nutrition programs. These programs are worth about $10 billion.

Moritz announces addition of aide

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The director of the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, Dr. Timothy B. Moritz, announced on Wednesday the appointment of Jann K. Heffner as legislative liaison for the department.

Ms. Heffner, who prefers that designation, replaces June Garvin who left the department to join the Ohio Petroleum Council.

Ms. Foreman is a longtime consumer advocate who was executive director of the Consumer Federation of America before her nomination. Her confirmation has been delayed in the Senate.

Participants in the annual lobbying trip also heard from Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, who suggested that if the Carter administration hopes to have program initiatives clear Congress easily, they had better be made soon.

"They have been very slow in making decisions about policies," he said of the administration.

Brown said that Carter's relationship with American citizens as measured in national polls is better than that with Congress.

"I have a feeling that President Carter, as an outsider in the Washington sense of that word, has about as many people waiting for him with knives and brickbats on the Democratic side of the aisle as he does on the Republican side," Brown said.

The congressman also talked about the natural gas shortage which struck Ohio with greater force than almost any other state. He blamed the shortage on passage of the Clean Air Act in 1968, which caused a massive shift to cheap natural gas from coal as a fuel.

Carter jealously guards privacy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, a private man in a public profession, is jealous of time spent with his family and does not encourage interruptions for less-than-urgent business.

"I guess it's been at least a month since I've been over to the second floor," said Press Secretary Jody Powell, referring to the Carter family's White House living quarters.

On the infrequent occasions when Powell has gone there, he acknowledged, it has been with the implicit advance approval of the President.

If Powell and other key aides feel they must talk to Carter after office hours, they reach him by telephone first and, whenever possible, transact their business that way.

"After all, there's only one of him and there are half a dozen of us," said Powell, suggesting that if aides felt free to invade Carter's privacy at will, he never would have time to himself.

In trying to draw a demarcation line between office hours and private time, Carter is mirroring the habits of President John F. Kennedy who, if anything, was more zealous about erecting an unseen but universally respected barricade between the living quarters and the White House offices.

Among recent presidents, only Lyndon B. Johnson invited regular visitations by favorite assistants, reporters, new-found acquaintances and others. As the door mat at LBJ's Texas ranch read: "All the world is welcome here."

Carter has placed atop his Oval Office desk a bronze plaque on a wooden base that reads, "Oh God, Thy sea is so great and my boat is so small." It's the gift from his old Navy boss, Adm. Hyman Rickover.

Also on the desk is a blackbound Bible atop a typing-size white memo pad, a small bottle of water from the North Pole, collected last year by the nuclear submarine Gurnard, a ceramic donkey presented by Georgia Democrats during the party's 1976 convention, and the celebrated plaque, borrowed from the Harry S. Truman Library, that reads "The Buck Stops Here."

A cigar in his mouth, Jody Powell began his daily news briefing Tuesday with an announcement that the wife of Carter's 26-year-old chief speech writer, James Fallows, had given birth to a son.

Hanoi teems with construction

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — At first glance it looks like the war is still on. Russian-built military trucks clog Hanoi's narrow streets. Green uniforms and pith helmets dominate the fashion scene on the crowded sidewalks.

Then you see that the trucks are filled with bricks, sand and other building materials, coming into the city to be used in rebuilding bombed buildings. Five years ago at the height of the war the trucks were loaded with ammunition and weapons and were heading out of town to war fronts in the South.

And on closer inspection, most of the people in military gear are not soldiers. They're workers utilizing the most available clothing.

What has not changed in Hanoi is the beehive industriousness that impressed visitors in the past. Now it is directed at rebuilding.

Highway billboards that used to display heroic pictures of peasant gunners shooting down American aircraft now extol the virtues of farming and show giant cabbages and tractors.

Newspapers that headlined accounts of victories over "the imperialist lackeys of the Americans" write of roadbuilding and food production on those southern battlefields.

You can still buy books about the spectacular victory in 1975 that collapsed the Saigon government and its army and ended the war. One such is a paperback, "Vuan Loc — Saigon," written by several veterans of the final battles.

But in half a dozen bookstores it was apparent that war books have given way to voluminous accounts of nation building and economic recovery, the two main preoccupations of the Hanoi government.

Gone along with the war books are the obvious symbols of the war days.

Workers have filled in the manholes around the lakes and along the main street that served as instant air raid shelter for the population during the American air raids.

Gone is the giant scoreboard two stories tall in downtown Hanoi that told the people about the war's progress with large red victory splashes painted across a map of South Vietnam.

War souvenirs are also in short supply.

Aides to the U.S. delegation seeking information about American war dead and those missing in action discovered in the bar of the Thong Nhut Hotel a showcase of local products. Among them were metal combs made from the wreckage of American warplanes, once a popular souvenir.

Col. William M. Hubbell, who used to fly against targets around Hanoi and is now deputy commander of the Joint Casualty Resolution Center in Thailand, bought one for a dollar.

"What the hell, the war's over now," he said.

"Well, I guess we are starting to take it all back home," said Roger Shields of the Defense Department as several other Americans bought the combs.

Haley files suit against firm

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Alex Haley, author of the best-seller "Roots," has sued Doubleday & Co., accusing the publisher of failing to promote the book and underselling paperback rights.

Haley filed the $5 million damage suit Wednesday in Superior Court and claimed Doubleday violated its 1974 contract by not promoting the book through advertising and speaking engagements.

He said he had to promote "Roots" and negotiate the successful serialized television program based on the book.

The author also said Doubleday did not provide distributors with enough copies of the $12.50 hard-cover edition after the success of the television serial and many bookstores ran out.

Under contracts negotiated with Doubleday in 1964 and 1974, Haley receives 15 per cent royalties, or about $1.87 on each hard-cover book, and 50 per cent of the paperback license or rights plus about 35 cents on each paperback book sold.

Haley said Doubleday did not obtain an adequate contract for the paperback edition with Dell Publishing Co. because Dell is a Doubleday subsidiary.

The suit seeks $5 million punitive damages plus unspecified damages for lost potential profits and an injunction to stall publication of the paperback edition.

The book, which Haley spent 12 years researching, is the fictionalized account of his ancestors from Africa through slavery in America to post-Civil War freedom.

Rain falls on parched far west

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Drought-troubled Western states got some relief early today as rain fell in parts of California, Nevada, Utah and Arizona.

Snow was reported at higher elevations, and up to six inches of snow were expected to accumulate in northern Arizona mountains.

A winter storm watch was posted through tonight for Colorado mountain areas.

Gusty winds accompanied a cold front that moved across Southwestern states and into the Southern Plains states.

A high wind warning was issued for the Texas Panhandle, where gusts were to reach 40 miles per hour and create dust problems.

Skies were cloudy to partly cloudy overnight in the Rocky Mountain region and Plains states. Showers were reported in west Texas and southeast Kansas. Snow fell in Minnesota, Oregon, Montana and northern Atlantic Coast states.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 71 at Del Rio, Texas, and several Florida cities to 14 at Marquette, Mich.

Temperatures were to be cool in the Northeast and from the Rockies to the Pacific Coast. Elsewhere readings were to be mild.

Metric drinking on the way

CINCINNATI (AP) — Depending on whether your friendly bartender gives you an ounce or an 1½ ounces, a shot of whisky with your beer starting New Year's Eve 1979 will be either 29.57 or 44.355 milliliters.

The proper recipe for a four-to-one Martini will sound more complicated when liquor industry completes its switch to the metric system on that date.

Mix 177.42 milliliters of gin and 44.355 milliliters of vermouth over one-half liter of cracked ice and shake gently. Pour into chilled glasses and add an olive or twist of lemon, about 2.5 centimeters long.

National Distillers Inc., which switched over its bottling plant in Cincinnati, the largest in the nation, this month is banking on lots of such conversions in hopes of convincing the American public that like it or not, the metric system is here.

"Frankly," said Ron Van Vactor, vice president in charge of the switcher, "we're turning a nightmare into a sales program and try to sell it with fun."

He said his firm is the first major liquor producer to begin the switch which is a "risk" because National Distillers does not want to be the only one to make the switch.

Van Vactor said this is why the firm chose to eliminate the half gallon bottles first substituting the 1.75 liter bottle, called the "Party Size."

At county health department

Cancer screening clinic scheduled

There are approximately 9,675 women 15 years of age and older in Fayette County.

In women, cancer of the breast and cancer of the cervix are leading causes of death. The diseases need not rob a woman of her life. The mortality rate from these diseases could be reduced drastically if women would follow these guidelines: (1) Have yearly breast examination and pap smear screening at the family physician's office or at a breast and cervical screening clinic. (2) Be informed of the technique for breast self-examination and then practice it monthly. (3) Be knowledgeable of the danger signals of cancer and seek medical assistance should a warning signal arise.

A breast and cervical cancer screening clinic is being established in the Fayette County Health Department in cooperation with the Fayette County unit of the American Cancer Society.

The first clinic will be held on Wednesday, March 23, from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m., at the Fayette County Health Department, 129 N. Hinde St.

Clinics will be held on the first and third Wednesdays of each month from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. at the health department and anyone interested in participating in the clinic should call 335-5910 for an appointment.

Fayette County was selected to participate in this screening program because the mortality rate for cervical and breast cancer is higher in Fayette County than the state average.

Funds for the program were made available by a grant from the National Institute of Health through the Chronic Disease Division of the Ohio Department of Health, and by a grant from the American Cancer Society. The local chapter of the American Cancer Society will be providing volunteer services, promotion, and literature for the clinic.

The clinic will be staffed by a local physician, health department nurses and clerical staff. Hannah Morris, a registered nurse, will be co-ordinating the program for the health department.

The clinic will be open to all women residing in Fayette County regardless of race or national origin. The aim in the clinic is to reach: (1) Women above the child-bearing age. (2) Women of child-bearing age who have had sterilization procedures. (3) Women who have never had a pap test done or who have not had one for over a year.

The services to the women attending the clinic will include a pelvic examination and pap smear, colon cancer screening test and breast examination. The women will also be taught the technique of breast self-examination.

Follow-up counseling and referral to their family physician for any problem that may be detected during the clinic visit will be done.

Winners in the Washington C.H. Blue Lion boosters club's "200 Club" drawing Wednesday night were Harold Foraker, 829 Broadway St., and BancOhio-First National Bank of Washington C.H.

The Community Chest board of directors will hold its annual meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, March 21 in the Carnegie Public Library. Mrs. Kathy Lee, board president, said the meeting is open to any person who contributed to the Community Chest drive during the past year.

First and second grade students will be performing "Bambi" during the Parent-Teacher Organization meeting at Jasper Elementary School in Milledgeville at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, according to Penny Brady, school principal.

The Fayette County Board of Mental Retardation will meet at 8 p.m. March 23 in the Fayette Progressive School building on S. Fayette Street.

The Blue Lines

Musical brings sites of Bangkok to WSHS

The Scene is Bangkok in the early 1860's. An English schoolteacher has accepted the job to teach the royal children of the King of Siam. This is where the excitement begins; the schoolteacher and the King have clashing personalities.

Anna Leonowens, the schoolteacher, is what you would call your early women's libber in the 1800's and her opposition is the powerful and most arrogant King of Siam.

Regardless of the conflicting ideas about a woman's place, it is apparent the two fall in love, yet they never really declare so.

What is all this about? The time has come again for the Washington Senior High School spring musical.

This year it is the "King & I". Some familiar tunes from the play are "Whistle a Happy Tune", "Getting To Know You", and "Hello Young Lovers".

Many of you will remember this play was performed by our school in 1966 and was quite a success. Well, the cast of the play in 1977 say they will be as equally successful or even more so.

The cast is in their second week of practice and things seem to be running smoothly. The play will be presented

April 22 and 23 at the Middle School Auditorium.

The members of the cast are as follows: Captain Orton - Paul Lockman. Louis Leonowens - Eric Croker. Anna Leonowens - Sue Stapleton, interpreter - Tracy Hawk, the Kralahome

- Mike McDonald, the King - Mike Qualls, Phra Alack - Dick Welch. Tuptim - Brenda Wonderleigh, Lady Thiang - Toni Conley, Prince Chulalongkorn - Brian Connell, Princess Ying Yaowalak - Kim Elcess, Lun Tha - John Rhodes, Sir Edward Ramsey - Gary Huysman.

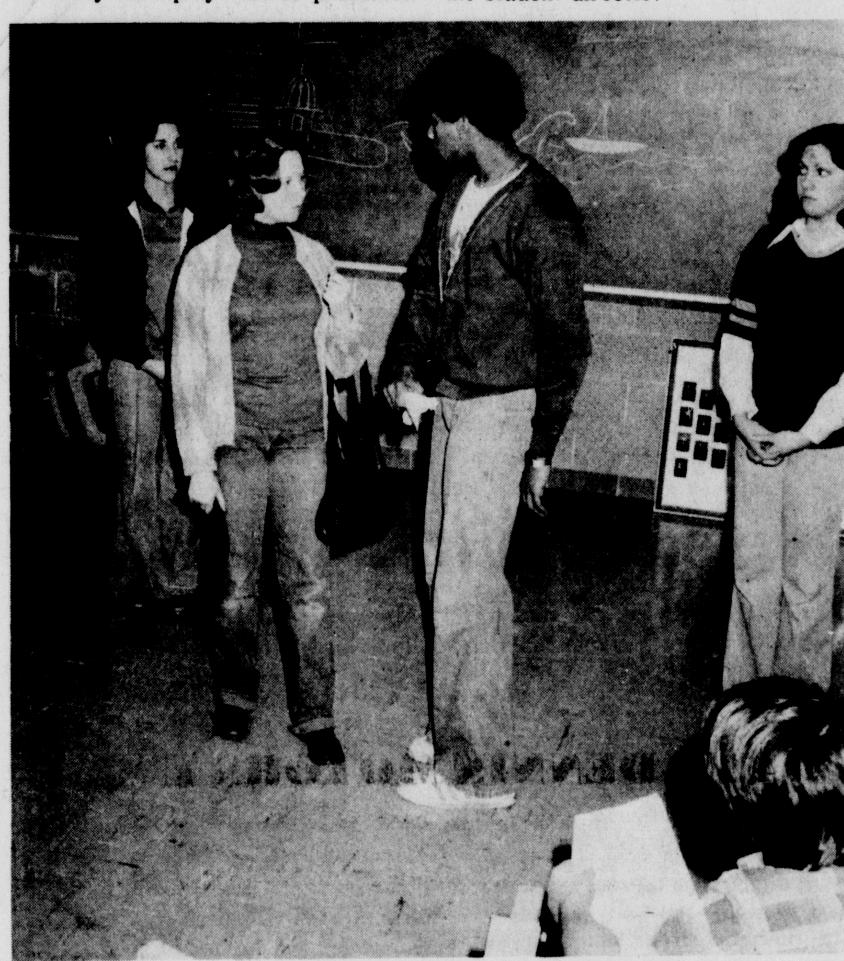

The royal dancers include Kitten Anderson, Beth Harris, Shelly Dove, Robin Hendron, Susan Pommert, Tracy Osterle, Susan Moore, Linda Warner, Kitten Sagar, Susan Stewart.

The King's wives include Kathy Ginn, Gloria Bolender, Jean Lago, Sandy Spears, Lynn Fischer, Jean Osborne, Jennifer Cox, Becky Ragland.

The priests are Keith Hottinger, Jean Winiger, Jim Conley.

The slaves are Phil Kimmel, Brian Buck, Dan Rodgers, Duane Six, John Denen, Mark Heiny, Scott Johnson, Tom Dean, Jeff Elliott, Jeff Deweese.

Kathy Wallace and Nancy Gossenell are the directors, and Robin Brakeall is the student director.

KENNARD BEVERLY

KIM KIRK

RICK ROBERTS

STEVE BAUGHN

Washington 'Seniors of the Week'

One of the honored seniors this week is Kennard Beverly. He resides with his father Mr. Kennard Beverly, four brothers, and two sisters at 510 S. North Street.

Kennard is taking Consumer Education, ROTC, English, Geography, Social Psychology and Business Law.

His activities in school consist of being a member of Hi-Y, AFS, Future Teachers, and working in the audiovisual room.

Kennard enjoys collecting records and learning the new dances.

In the future, Kennard plans to join the service and would like to further his education.

As a word of advice to us all, Kennard replied, "Students should work hard and stay in school." We feel this is the best advice a senior could give.

Kimberly Kay Kirk is another one of our featured seniors of the week. She resides at U.S. 62 with her parents, James and Edith Kirk, and her sister Tammy, 14, who is a student at Bloomingburg School.

In her spare time, Kim enjoys swimming, riding around, and just being with her friends.

This school year Kim is taking Speech I, Mythology, Band, Home Ec. Non-Majors, and Family Living.

For three years Kimberly has been marching at every football game and in the parades with the band. She has been a 4-H member for five years and a member of American Field Service and Y-Teens for three years each.

Kim's yet undecided about her future plans, but leaves this comment to the underclassmen: "I've had a lot of fun this year, and I hope all of you have fun next year as our class has had." Good Luck!

Another featured senior this week is Rick Roberts. Rick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Roberts, of 614 Sycamore St.

His courses this year are American Government, Mythology, Science Fiction, DE I, and DE II.

Being such an active ROTC member, Rick's spare time is somewhat limited. But, when he does have time, he can either be found working on cars or talking on citizen's band radios. Hunting and fishing are also favorite activities of his.

His activities this year include Rociteers of which he is treasurer.

Rick is quite an accomplished Rociteer, having been awarded Honor Cadet twice, Distinguished First Year Cadet, Exemplary Conduct, the Aptitude Award, Exemplary Personal Appearance, NST Honor Platoon, member of the Rifle Team, and past color guard commander.

Rick is to leave in October for Orlando, Fla. for basic training in the U.S. Navy. From Florida he will be going to school and major in aviation electronics. Afterwards, he hopes to be assigned to a fleet.

"I enjoyed high school, but if I were to do it again I would get more involved. As far as graduation, I can't wait." These were the comments of Steve Baughn.

Steve is 18 years old and resides at 168 Eastview Road with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Baughn. Steve has one brother, Brian, who is 4 years old.

His hobbies include riding bicycles, motorcycles, and bowling. He has been Past Master of DeMolay. Steve is also a member of Grace United Methodist Church and has been listed in "Who's Who Among American High School Students."

Foreign exchange student adapts well to U.S. life

By MIKE QUALLS

Can you imagine how you would feel if you were suddenly in some foreign country and didn't know a soul there? You would probably feel very alone and depressed. Right? Wrong! Well at least that's not how Jean Winiger, our foreign exchange student from Switzerland, felt about his new situation.

Jean had few problems adjusting to his new life here in the United States. He had some difficulty with language since he learned English and we speak American. What we mean by that is, there are certain distinct differences in the way we say man, can, understand, etc... and the way the English say them. The English don't put as much accent on the "an" part of those words.

Jean has many friends at school which can only be attributed to his easy going and likable personality. Jean in turn thinks the students at Washington Senior High School are very friendly and easy to get along with. When asked what he liked most about the U.S. Jean replied, "everything, especially the quarter pounders with cheese."

Jean misses his home and friends and he thinks about them often but he says he's never really been homesick. He feels that his stay has really been a good experience for him so far.

"It will be a very sad time when I have to leave Washington C.H.", Jean said.

The Point After

By MARK REA

When the gymnasium clocks at the Ohio University Convocation Center and the Ban Johnson Field House at Marietta College ticked off to :00, the SCOL closed out five months of basketball.

Only fitting for Fayette County fans was the fact that both Washington C.H. and Miami Trace were the sole survivors in tournament play. Unfortunately, both lost on the same night more than 100 miles from home.

Looking back on predictions we made before the season, we can only hope we do better next season. We picked Wilmington to finish second. We were close; they were undefeated this season.

Our top club, Miami Trace, did not work out to our expectations. They struggled through a miserable first half before playing some the best basketball in their final games. They ended up in a tie for third with Circleville at 6-6.

We were close with Madison Plains, although the Eagles couldn't win for almost two months. They finished fifth; we picked them fourth.

Three teams we hit on the nose. We picked Circleville third, Hillsboro sixth, and Greenfield McClain seventh. Circleville had to suffer through just one home game in its first nine contests. Hillsboro narrowly missed a .500 season at 9-10 while McClain never quite got off the ground after a flying 3-0 start. They lost 14 of their last 16, including 11 league losses in a row.

But, the most glaring error in the whole list for us was picking Washington C.H. to finish fifth. They were in the race until the last day before dropping to Wilmington. They finished with a 10-2 league record when many people figured they would do well to capture a 6-6 mark.

With only one starter back, the Lions just didn't figure to do much in the SCOL. But, Lions head coach Gary Shaffer stayed with John Denen alongside Sam McClendon, Dee Hart Foster, and Tom Dean while switching Terry Wilson and Mark Burke at the fifth spot.

Denen responded with over 300 rebounds while Foster, McClendon, and Dean previously unproven on the varsity level) scoring in double figures constantly.

After looking back, and not exactly happy about what we see, its time for a look ahead.

1960 must have been a very good year. Not for wines, but for SCOL basketball talent. It is nearly unbelievable that most of this season's big efforts came from juniors.

Rattling off a list of juniors is practically listing the all-SCOL team. In addition to Denen, Art Schlichter, Gary Williams, Bill Hanners, Toren Bensonhaver, and David Nared will all be back in uniform next season.

In the 1977-78 season, Trace will be in good shape as they lost only Dan Gifford from the front-liners. Using Schlichter, Hanners, Tom Richardson, Glen Cobb, and Dave Glass, they would field all experienced starters and a possible SCOL winner.

Hillsboro is losing all of their first team as Gary Larimer, Tim Sharkey, Randy Sanders, Gary Coffman and Tim Fuller are all seniors this season.

Greenfield McClain will lose its top players with Chuck Cole and Eric Dunson graduating. And Madison Plains will curse graduation day as well when Gary Self, Doug Sifrit, and Pete Sullivan become alumni.

Circleville's top two performers, Brent Wright and Frank Merrill, will also be gone, although Bensonhaver will still be around.

The Washington C.H. will be faced with nearly the same problem as last year. Denen will return, but Foster, Dean, McClendon, and Burke have played their final games on the Lion hardwood. But, don't count them out after this season.

Don't count any of these statements as predictions because track, baseball, and softball are now on the SCOL collective minds. And there's football to worry about after that. But, sometime next November, SCOL sports will once again move inside with eight teams as Teays Valley joins the league. Then, we will try to do a little better.

'Ladies of the Mets' baseball cheerleaders

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — New York Mets' rookie Lee Mazzilli dumped a bunt in front of the plate. Catcher Ted Simmons of the Cardinals pounced on the ball and, in desperate haste, threw wildly past first base.

Mazzilli, his legs churning, scampered around second and headed for third.

Two young ladies on the front row at Al Lang Stadium leaped simultaneously to their feet and began emitting high-pitched screams.

"Go, go, go," yelled Whitney De Roulet, 25.

"No, no, no, you can't make it," came the soprano call of Bebe De Roulet, 23.

It's a scene often repeated during the regular baseball season at Shea Stadium in New York with third member of the party, striking Mrs. Vincent De Roulet, the mother, showing only slightly less exuberance.

They're "The Ladies of the Mets," and they're not ornaments or window dressing. They're completely involved.

Mrs. De Roulet is the Mets' president, successor to her mother, Mrs. Charles Payson, who died in October 1975. With son Dan, 22, committed to a career in New York, the daughters appear to be the ultimate heirs to the franchise, thus prolonging a maternal, apronstring wedge in a world of tough, cigar-smoking baseball directors.

Mrs. De Roulet, as did her mother, sits in the higher councils. She is the first woman permitted on the dais at the strictly stag New York Baseball Writers' Dinner.

Whitney, wearing a famous family name, is assistant director of the public relations. Bebe has the same post in the promotions department. Both work 9-to-5 shifts and draw moderate salaries.

Both have become avid baseball fans, as has Mrs. De Roulet, who recalls how her grandmother, Mrs. John Payne Whitney of the thoroughbred racing Whitneys, used to sit by her radio and run a gamut of emotions with the old New York Giants.

The diamond fervor was passed on to Joan, who subsequently married a New York executive, Charles Payson. When Mrs. Payson died, her husband retained 48 per cent ownership with 32 per cent divided among four children. Mrs. De Roulet, two sisters and a brother, John.

"I remember grandmother's interest in the Giants and my mother used to take me to games as a child," Mrs. De Roulet said. "Then I drifted away for a while."

Vincent De Roulet, a Californian who was once ambassador to Jamaica, died in August 1975.

Whitney was the first of the daughters to get interested in baseball.

"I disliked it with a passion at first," acknowledged Bebe. "I wanted to travel. I went to South America, Peru and Paris. My main interest was riding horses — in shows and going fox-hunting."

"I fell in love with the Mets right away," said Whitney. "I started going to a lot of games in 1964. I would sit with Edna Stengel. It was fascinating."

The two daughters share their favorite personalities on the club. "We both adore Joe Torre, Koos (pitcher Jerry Koosman), Ed Kranepool and Jerry Grote," said Bebe. "The older ones. They're unaffected, like a big warm blanket."

NBC faces no Series

NEW YORK (AP) — Year Two of the Great Baseball Compromise is upon us and NBC is faced with an unusual situation.

For the first time in 30 years, NBC will NOT televise the World Series. That honor falls to ABC as the result of a four-year deal baseball signed with both networks last year.

"Not having the World Series is obviously important to us," says Chet Simmons, the NBC veteran recently named vice president for sports. "The guys who have worked on baseball are disappointed. But they're all realists and they understand business arrangements."

Under the agreement, NBC gets

Magics still in hunt for second title

Barberton crushes Canton McKinley

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Twins Mark and Marty Bodnar, who have been averaging a combined 33 points per game, were held to only eight apiece Wednesday night, but that didn't phase Barberton's run for a second straight high school Class AAA basketball championship.

"This is the way we have played all year," Barberton Coach Jack Greynolds said after the Magics destroyed Canton McKinley 89-64 in the Canton regional semifinals.

"If they (the opponents) shut somebody off, somebody else picks up the slack," Greynolds said. "Our opponents can't concentrate on any one guy."

In this case it was Carter Scott who took up the slack, pouring in a career-high 36 points, 14 more than his average, as top-ranked Barberton extended its winning streak to 49 games and advanced to the regional finals Saturday against the winner of tonight's clash between Warren Western Reserve and Cleveland St. Ignatius.

In other high school tournament action Wednesday night, Kettering Alter beat Cincinnati Princeton 62-52 and Cincinnati LaSalle whipped Vandalia-Butler 72-59 in the Dayton Class AAA regional and will face off Saturday night for a berth in the state tournament, while New Bremen downed Mount Blanchard Riverdale 67-51 in the Bowling Green Class A regional.

Tournament play tonight features No. 4 Richmond Dale Southeastern versus Lucasville Valley and former state champion Strasburg against Shadyside in the Ohio University Class A regional, with North College Hill facing Columbus Bexley and surprising Springfield Shawnee taking on Dayton Jefferson in the Dayton Class AA semifinals.

Underdogs take on Titans

"It's like Chuck Wepner fighting Muhammad Ali."

That's the way Detroit Coach Dick Vitale looks at his school's task tonight as the Titans go up against top-ranked Michigan in the Mideast Regional of the NCAA basketball tournament.

"We're the underdog fighting the large national school," Vitale explained. "They have the million-dollar basketball program. And we have not had the athletic heritage — no football program and other programs like they have. They know how to win and know what it is."

Michigan Coach Johnny Orr is also looking forward to the matchup with the 12th-ranked Titans, calling it "the greatest game for fan interest in our state's history."

The game between Michigan, 25-3, and Detroit, 25-3, will be the nightcap of the Mideast Regional doubleheader at Lexington, Ky. In the opener, No. 6 Syracuse, 26-3, plays No. 17 North Carolina-Charlotte, 24-3.

The other three regional semifinals also will be played tonight. In the East Regional at College Park, Md., No. 20 VMI, 26-3, meets No. 3 Kentucky, 25-3, and No. 10 Notre Dame, 21-6, plays No. 5 North Carolina, 25-4. In the Midwest Regional at Oklahoma City, No. 7 Marquette, 21-7, takes on No. 16 Kansas State, 23-7, and No. 9 Wake Forest, 23-6, plays unranked Southern Illinois, 22-6. In the West Regional at Provo, Utah, No. 14 Utah, 22-6, opposes No. 4 Nevada-Las Vegas, 26-2, and No. 2 UCLA, 24-4, goes against unranked Idaho State, 24-4.

The Sabina Lions Club has chosen to cancel its annual invitational basketball tournament. Energy problems were cited as the cause for the cancellation.

Rose disillusioned with Reds over contract dispute

By WILL GRIMSLY
AP Special Correspondent

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — "I wish they would just look me straight in the eye and tell me the reason," Pete Rose said. "If I knew the reason, maybe I could deal with it."

"I'd much rather somebody tell me, 'Pete, you're getting old, you can't cut it any more.' Or say, 'Your arm's bad, you can't throw any more.' Or 'You've slowed up.'

"But, no, they just say, 'What you're asking, it's too rich. We can't afford it.'"

Pete Rose is confused. He is disheartened. He is disillusioned. Seventeen years of dedication and loyalty to the Cincinnati Reds, the only baseball organization he has ever been with. And now they are treating him like a total stranger.

The wound obviously cuts deep into the little gut fighter from the other end of town—"Mr. Hustle" himself, "Mr. Cincinnati Red," who more than any other man has symbolized the grit and gristle that has carried the team to four National League pennants and two World Series championships in the last seven years.

One of the shocking developments of the spring has been the Reds' failure to sign the scrappy All-Star veteran to a 1977 contract. They have invoked the option clause, meaning Rose remains under contract at the same $200,000 salary he drew in 1976 or with a 20 per cent cut — the club's prerogative. If the contract is not renewed, Rose will be a free agent after the 1977 season. Don't be surprised if he becomes a New York Yankee. He is George Steinbrenner's type of player — all baseball.

"I'm not trying to hold anybody up," Rose said. "I just want what I deserve. I don't know what Joe Morgan makes and I don't care. I set my figure a week and a half before Joe signed."

Morgan, the Reds' second baseman and the National League's Most Valuable Player last season, signed for a reported $1.2 million for three years. Shortstop Dave Concepcion signed this week for five years and $1 million. Catcher Johnny Bench is completing a two-year pact calling for $250,000 a year.

Neither Rose nor the Reds management has disclosed what the All-Star third baseman is asking. It is believed in the three-year, $1.2 million range.

Rose, at 35, is a bargain at any price. Baseball should preserve him in bronze.

Rose is proud of his record of durability and consistency — 490 consecutive games, 11 of 12 seasons with a better than .300 average, eight years with 200 hits or more (bettered only by Ty Cobb's nine) and only 119 away from 3,000 hits.

Yet he is beginning to recognize that baseball can be a cold, impersonal business and appreciation can fade quickly.

"Nobody seems to remember that I have jumped from one position to another — second base to the outfield to third — every time the club needed a boost. In 1975 we were five games below .500 when they moved me to third base. Then we started moving."

"Nobody from management — I am not talking about Sparky (Manager Sparky Anderson) — nobody said so much as a 'thank you.'"

Corcoran 'wearing o' the grin'

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Today was St. Patrick's Day, the perfect chance for a guy named Timothy Michael Corcoran to celebrate.

Corcoran has good reason — and not just because of his Irish name.

Wednesday, four days before his 24th birthday, the rookie outfielder blasted a home run in the bottom of the 13th inning, giving the Detroit Tigers a 5-4 exhibition victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Tuesday, Corcoran had smashed a two-run homer in the 11th inning in a 3-1 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies.

In 13 spring at-bats, the lefthanded hitter from Covina, Calif., has ripped six hits and driven in four runs.

"The kid is opening a few eyes, isn't he?" asked Manager Ralph Houk. "He's hot right now."

Corcoran had not received much attention from the media. Most of it has gone to rookie Steve Kemp, who is expected to assume the left field job ahead of Willie Horton. But Houk said of Corcoran, "We have been talking about him since the first day he got here."

Does he have a shot at making the team in view of the presence of Kemp plus veterans Horton, Ron LeFlore, Ben Oglivie, Rusty Staub and Mickey Stanley?

A's, Pirates engineer seven player deal*Oakland still 'wheeling and dealing'

OAKLAND (AP) — Phil Garner, the outstanding young infielder seeking the financial status several of his former Oakland A's teammates reached last fall as baseball's free agents, went to Pittsburgh in a nine-player trade Wednesday.

"I'm sorry to lose him," said A's owner Charles O. Finley in Chicago. "But, Garner told me, 'So many other seem to be doing it, I'm going to play out my option and make some big money unless you want to sign me for what I want.' I was forced to trade him."

Garner began contract negotiations asking for $1.8 million over four years and his last request was for an even $1 million, an $80,000 bonus for signing and $50,000 salary for four years Finley said.

The A's received six players from Pittsburgh, including starting pitcher Doc Medich, who was 8-11 last year after winning 49 games in three seasons with the New York Yankees. Medich, 28, upon learning of the trade, said he was considering leaving baseball and concentrating on his medical school studies.

"If he quite, he quits," said Finley. "To be honest, I still think its one of the best deals the A's have ever made, and I now think we're definitely a contender for the division championship in 1977."

The A's also acquired 37-year-old reliever Dave Guisti, 5-4 last year, and four young players Finley called excellent prospects: pitchers Rick

Langford and Doug Bair, and infielders Tony Armas and Mitchell Page. Veteran infielder Tommy Helms and 22-year-old pitcher Chris Batton accompanied Garner to the Pirates.

Garner has spent his first two major league seasons at second base, but the Pirates will move him to third, the position he played in college and in the minors. Chuck Tanner, the A's manager last year, now manages the Pirates.

"By the end of spring training, he should be able to adjust to third base," said Harding Peterson, the Pirates' personnel director of the 27-year-old infielder who batted .261 and drove in 74 runs last season.

"The Oakland A's would be the strongest team in baseball today if Bowie Kuhn hadn't destroyed—

Garner was the only remaining member of last year's starting Oakland infield. First baseman Don Baylor, shortstop Bert Campenier and third baseman Sal Bando were among the six A's who became free agents after the season and signed lucrative contracts with other teams.

Finley attempted to sell two of those six, Joe Rudi and Rollie Fingers, to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million apiece last June but commissioner Bowie Kuhn wouldn't allow the sale. Kuhn, being sued by Finley over that ruling, had no objection to Wednesday's trade.

"The A's are not through wheeling and dealing," Finley promised.

Later Wednesday, the A's announced that veteran pitcher Tom Bradley, formerly with the Chicago White Sox and San Francisco Giants, had been given his unconditional release.

temporarily, thank God—the Oakland franchise when he cancelled the deal," Finley said.

The A's traded another unsigned player, reliever Jim Todd, to the Chicago Cubs for veteran starter Joe Coleman Tuesday night. The unsigned players on Finley's roster include pitchers Paul Mitchell and Mike Norris and outfielder Claudell Washington.

"The A's are not through wheeling and dealing," Finley promised.
